Navy Fears Vessel Sank Off Cape Cod

129 Men Aboard Nation's Finest, Deepest Diver

WASHINGTON (AP) — The atomic submarine Thresher, the world's fastest and deepest diving submarine, "appears to be lost" in the Atlantic with 129 men aboard, the Navy said Wednesday night.

An oil slick has been sighted, the Navy said.

Adm. George W. Anderson, chief of naval operations, told newsmen the submarine disappeared about 220 miles east of Boston while conducting deep test dives.

The water there is about 8,400 feet deep.

"At that depth, rescue would be absolutely out of the question," Anderson said.

The Navy appeared to be convinced, 12 hours after the Thresher last reported, that the submarine had failed to surface again.

Anderson said there still was the possibility there had been a communications failure and that the submarine was unable to report her position.

Fear All May Be Lost

Anderson said if the Thresher sank at the 8,400-foot depth there would be no hope that anyone was still alive.

The Thresher, an attack submarine—a class which does not carry Polaris missiles — was conducting deep diving tests and was last heard from shortly before she submerged at 9 a.m.

The Thresher was accompanied by the submarine rescue vessel Skylark, a routine procedure when submarine tests and trials are conducted following an overhaul.

Search Commenced

The Navy announcement said: "While there is a possibility that the nuclear submarine has not reported her position due to a communication failure, a search was immediately commenced by the Navy in accordance with emergency proceedings for such situations.

"Navy ships, aircraft and other submarines are searching the area where the Thresher was last reported. They are encountering cloudy weather of winds of from 25 to 40 knots and seas of from 5 to 9 feet. Such conditions would make it difficult for the on-scene search units to sight the overdue submarine even though it were on the surface and unable to transmit a position report by radio communications.

In Deep Water

"The location of the Thresher from her last report was given as 41.44 north and 64.57 west. The depth of water at this location is approximately 8,400 feet. Merchant ships in this area have been requested to keep a sharp lookout for the submarine in addition to the maximum effort being made by the Navy.

"Additional reports on the progress of the search will be made by the Navy. Names and addresses of the members of the crew will be released after all next-of-kin have been notified that the ship is overdue."

18 Civilians Aboard

The Navy said those aboard the Thresher included 16 officers, 96 enlisted men and 18 civilians. Submarines, after leaving overhaul, often carry employes of the builder's yard for purposes of the post overhaul test.

As an attack submarine, the vessel would not be carrying Polaris missiles, the nuclear-capable weapon which can be launched

Former Baker Union Head Is Convicted

WASHINGTON (AP)—James G. Cross, resigned president of a bakery workers union long enmeshed in scandals, was convicted Wednesday on embezzlement and conspiracy charges that could send him to prison for 25 years.

A U.S. District Court jury deliberated 12 hours before returning its guilty verdict on four counts. The counts alleged Cross took $35,000 in union funds to fix a perjury case against him and then arranged for another $35,000 embezzlement to cover up the earlier union treasury shortage.

The Justice Department said Cross, 50, now a resident of Boca Raton, Fla., faces a possible maximum sentence of 25 years in prison and $31,000 fine. Cross, who has denied any wrongdoing, was continued under $5,000 bond pending sentence.

Half a dozen lesser former aides of Cross in the Bakery & Confectionery Workers International Union — an organization ousted from the AFL-CIO in 1957 on corruption charges—have also been charged with embezzlement and conspiracy. Some have pleaded guilty. Others await trial.

Senate Passes Youth Aid Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate passed Wednesday night President Kennedy's youth employment bill, designed to furnish hundreds of thousands of jobs in conservation camps and local public service projects.

The vote was 50-34.

The vote gave the president his second Senate victory in a week on a major item in his 1963 legislative program. Last Thursday the body cleared his $375-million mass transit subsidy measure.

Most Republicans fought the youth bill, as they had the transit proposal, but they did not stress the big spending argument so much.

Gov. Gen. Vanier Of Canada Has Heart Attack

OTTAWA (AP)—Canada's Gov. Gen. George P. Vanier suffered a slight heart attack Tuesday and has canceled official engagements for the next six weeks, Government House announced Wednesday night.

The governor general is the representative of Queen Elizabeth II in Canada and thus a central figure by protocol in the controversial transition of power from Prime Minister John G. Diefenbaker's Conservatives to the newly triumphant Liberal party of Lester B. Pearson.

Vanier has been governor general since Sept. 15, 1959. He will be 75 on April 23.

A member of his staff said Vanier still will be able to receive visitors at his residence.

Suspect Held In Million Dollar Fire

MERCER, Pa. (UPI) —Frank D. Palermo Jr., son of Frank (Blinky) Palermo, was arrested by FBI agents Wednesday on suspicion of arson in a $1 million Ohio fire.

Palermo, 29, of Philadelphia, was arraigned before a U. S. Commissioner and jailed when he could not post $50,000 bond for a hearing next Wednesday.

The FBI said Palermo Jr. was taken into custody at a bus depot in Erie. A detainer also was filed against him in connection with bad check charges in Grand Rapids, Mich.

Palermo was convicted in Philadelphia in 1960 of participating in the theft of $7,200 in travelers checks, sentenced to two years in prison, fined $500 and ordered to make full restitution.

Truce Team Meets Warring Chiefs In Laos

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—International control commissioners met separately with warring Pathet Lao and neutralist commanders on the Plaine des Jarres Wednesday in an attempt to end the hostilities menacing Laos' freedom and neutrality.

The Indian chairman, Avtar Singh, said he and his Canadian and Polish colleagues found the situation quiet but tense.

No fresh shooting was reported. The latest incident was a Pathet Lao attack Tuesday on a detachment of five or six tanks approaching the plain in an effort to reinforce the beleaguered neutralists.

World pressures for peace were rising, the Soviet Union joining in the pressures. Red China's propagandists openly took the side of the pro-Communist Pathet Lao.

(In Washington, the State Department in a guarded statement said it would give consideration to any formal request from the Laotian government for arms aid to the neutralists.)

The three-nation International Control Commission made a flying trip to the disputed, hill-ringed plateau 120 miles northeast of Vientiane in an effort to bring together neutralist Gen. Kong Le and the Pathet Lao's military chief, Gen. Singkapo.

Arms Race End Urged By Pontiff

Expresses Fear Cold War May Become Hot

By EUGENE LEVIN

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John XXIII called Wednesday for a space age peace under supervision of a public authority of the world community. He indicated the United Nations could provide the foundation.

The 81-year-old head of the Roman Catholic Church urged a nuclear weapons ban and controlled disarmament in a historic 15,000-word encyclical "Pacem in Terris" (Peace on Earth).

Expresses Concern

Pope John expressed his concern that the world might accidentally be plunged into an atomic holocaust.

And he sketched a blueprint of the way he felt peace could be made permanent—a peace on all levels, between man and man, community and community, nation and nation.

He denounced racial and religious persecution. He condemned the intervention of one state in the affairs of another. He appealed to governments to bring the benefits of economic prosperity to all men.

But most of all he spoke of his anxiety that the cold war might become a hot one.

Seized By Anxiety

"Seized by anxiety for the good of all, we feel it our duty to beseech men, especially those who have the responsibility of public affairs, to spare no labor in order to insure that world events follow a reasonable and human course," he said.

A papal encyclical is a letter in Latin, normally directed to Roman Catholics. Today's was the first in history addressed to non-Catholics as well, and the eighth in Pope John's 4½ year reign.

"To all men of good will," he wrote. He then outlined in the encyclical's five parts:

1. The order which should exist between men, their rights and duties to each other in living peacefully and prosperously.

2. Relations that should exist between individuals and the state, stipulating that men have the duty to accept authority, but could oppose laws contrary to the will of God.

3. Relations between states, based on mutual respect and negotiation.

4. The relationship of men and of political communities with a world authority.

5. Exhortations to Roman Catholics.

Beamed To World

In the encyclical—translated by the Vatican into all major languages and beamed around the world by the Vatican radio—Pope John spelled out how "the community of all peoples should act toward each other, the establishment of such a world community of peoples being urgently demanded today by the requirements of universal common good."

His concept of "the public authority of the world community" is an agency set up "by common

Clay Says Foreign Aid Is Overextended

WASHINGTON (AP)—Gen. Lucius D. Clay estimated Wednesday that U.S. foreign aid has been overextended in about one-quarter of the countries on this nation's aid list.

Clay, who headed a presidential advisory committee which recommended tightening up on the foreign aid program, got a generally friendly reception from the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

But Chairman Thomas B. Morgan, D-Pa., told newsmen later that AFL-CIO President George Meany has asked to be heard in public session. Meany was the only member of the Clay committee who dissented from the report and argued for a substantial increase in foreign aid.

Clay framed his words carefully throughout the session. For instance, he made clear that by overextended he meant more aid was funneled into a country than was necessary to keep the U.S. foot in the door, or "maintain a presence," as Clay put it, but not enough to put the recipient country on its feet economically.

Returning to that theme repeatedly, Clay said at one point: "We don't believe foreign aid can be given to all countries in the world in amounts that would be effective. Therefore our view is that we should reduce the number of nations to which we give aid and concentrate on those which are able to perform and which have the self-discipline to make aid effective."

Broadcasters Told To Make Improvements

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A five-week long congressional hearing into broadcast ratings ended Wednesday with Chairman Oren Harris, D-Ark., warning the industry that extensive improvements are in order.

"I have no question in my mind as to the need for some real thoughtful consideration for action," he said.

Harris, chairman of the House commerce investigating subcommittee, said the rating services controlled an industry that affected the lives of the American people.

"The American people demand truth and honesty in ratings," he stated.

Harris said he felt that some of those who estimated audiences for radio and television were "well intentioned." But he said he frankly doubted if such was true with others.

The ratings have been a source of controversy for years. Critics contend that they largely determine what is seen and heard on radio and television and that their accuracy is open to question.

President Is Watching Newest Move

Increase Seen As Trial Balloon; Industry Silent

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The steel price line was broken Wednesday by one of the smaller producers. The big question now: What will the rest of the industry and President Kennedy do about it?

A selective price boost by Wheeling Steel Corp. posed momentous decisions.

President Kennedy postponed departure for an Easter vacation in Florida until Thursday.

Asked the reason, White House press secretary Pierre Salinger replied: "The President has a number of matters here at the White House he feels he should attend to this afternoon."

Wheeling's action came exactly a year after U.S. Steel, the No. 1 producer, raised prices and stirred up a historic battle between the White House and the industry.

Kennedy Infuriated

Kennedy—infuriated then at a price boost after a new labor contract had been negotiated without a wage raise—mounted a massive offensive against the steelmakers. Under this pressure and the failure of some companies to go along, the boost was rescinded three days later.

Wheeling's increase on certain steel products, averaging $6 a ton, seemed to have caught other producers by surprise. They would say little more than that they were studying the situation.

Express Concern

Conferences were reported going on at the White House and some top administration advisers said they were "extremely concerned."

A source close to the administration told a reporter: "The Wheeling move has to be a trial balloon. Unless there is a loud scream from the administration you can look for the rest of the steel industry to move up its prices in the next few weeks."

William A. Steele, president of Wheeling, ranked No. 11 among the producers, said the raise was due to "a steady increase in the cost of materials, services and labor."

This has long been the theme of steel executives who contend that their profits are being squeezed by competition from foreign producers and from other domestic materials.

The steel industry has not had a general price increase since 1958.

Stock Market Hit

The steel situation made the stock market jittery and prices closed uneven. First word of the Wheeling move sent the market spurting with steel issues leading the advance. Then the steel gains were wiped out in a sinking spell but before the close prices recovered partially. Wheeling advanced $1.37 to $32.75, U.S. Steel 37 cents to $48.37, Bethlehem 37 cents to $32 and Republic 50 cents to $38.12.

U.S. Steel declined to comment on its intentions.

House Approves Public Works

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy won a crucial victory over budget cutters Wednesday when the House voted to restore $450 million for public works projects to combat unemployment.

The key action came on a vote to reverse action by the Appropriations Committee which had knocked out all the half-billion dollars requested for the program by the President. The non-record vote was 202-172 and it was confirmed by a rollcall vote of 228-184. This included 208 Democrats and 20 Republicans for and 151 Republicans and 33 Democrats against.

12 Youngsters Shield Dog From Police Firing Squad

MALLORYTOWN, Ont. (UPI)—A dozen children who used their bodies to shield a dog against shotgun - armed police apparently have won their battle to save the animal's life.

A community by-law gave Ontario provincial police the authority to track the dog down when residents began complaining of a "vicious dog." The law prohibits stray dogs from running around loose.

The police searched for the dog, a part-time German Shepherd named "Spike," for 10 days and Tuesday they cornered it in a backyard.

Meanwhile, word of the hunt had spread through the town's juvenile population and a dozen children, who had rushed to the capture scene, circled the animal with their arms linked. The police retreated to consider further action.

It was learned Wednesday that a license had been bought and a home found for the dog.

Believed Accomplice Of Adolf Eichmann

BERN, Switzerland (UPI) — Swiss police Wednesday detained an Austrian lawyer accused by survivors of Nazi death camps of being Adolf Eichmann's accomplice in the mass murder of Jews, including Anne Frank of the famous dairy.

The Jewish documentation center in Vienna listed the young Jewish girl as one of his victims. Her account of life in Holland under Nazi rule was the subject of a book, play and movie titled "The Diary of Anne Frank."

An expulsion order against "Erico Raja, alias Erich Rajakowitsch" was issued earlier Wednesday by the Swiss government. Raja, who disappeared from his home in Italy last Friday, had been sought by Swiss police since Sunday.

A police spokesman said Raja was found in Melide, near Lugano, and held for questioning. Raja has a summer villa at Melide.

Apart from the charges that Raja helped Eichmann in his mass extermination of Europe's Jews, the spokesman said, it is believed he entered Switzerland illegally.

The federal justice and police department have said that Raja will be expelled from Switzerland as an undesirable alien. It was reported that police had been ordered to escort Raja to the border of any country willing to accept him.

Following the accusations by the Jewish center in Vienna, the Italian government declared Raja "personna non - grata" and barred him from re-entering Italy. Raja, an Austrian citizen with an Italian residence permit which allowed him to carry out commercial activities, had been living in Milan with his Italian-born wife.

Raja disappeared from his Milan home shortly before the Jewish center in Vienna said he actually was Rajakowitsch, one of the chief lieutenants of Eichmann, who was convicted by an Israeli court of the mass murder of European Jews and hanged.

In the Hague, a Dutch government spokesman said documents identified Rajakowitsch as a captain of the Nazi SS who had a hand in the deportation of Dutch Jews to the extermination camps in Poland. One of the Dutch Jews was the young Frank girl.

Canadian Political Scene Appears To Be Muddled

By MAX HARRELSON

TORONTO (AP) —Conservative party leaders were reported split Wednesday over whether Prime Minister John G. Diefenbaker should resign as a result of Monday's election setback or should stay on until Parliament meets late next month.

The 67-year-old prime minister kept his plans to himself as he flew to Ottawa from his Saskatchewan home for discussions on the postelection situation. The uncertainty may continue at least until next week.

One political writer close to Diefenbaker reported he has decided to step down and open the way for Liberal leader Lester B. Pearson to form a government.

The prime minister has said that he will make no statement until he knows the result of armed services votes which will be tabulated over the weekend. Diefenbaker also wants to find out whether he could get support from two minor parties — Social Credit and New Democratic — if he tried to stay in office.

The question will be discussed at a cabinet meeting Thursday. Other important consultations were in progress. Social Credit leader Robert Thompson flew to Ottawa to meet with Deputy Leader Real Caouette, to determind their position.

The difficulty arises because the election gave none of the four parties a clearcut majority of the 265 House of Commons seats. The Liberals won 128—just five short of the 133 needed for a majority. The Conservatives captured 96, the others 41.

The Liberals need the support of at least one of the smaller parties if they are to carry on as a minority government. The Conservatives could continue in power only with support from both small parties.

It is not unusual for a defeated prime minister to delay announcement of his plans until the service vote is counted. In 1957 the Liberal prime minister, Louis St. Laurent, waited seven days before he resigned. The Liberals lost that one to the Conservatives, 112-105.

Body Of Missing Student Is Found

WASHINGTON, Pa. (UPI)—The body of a 19-year-old Pennsylvania college student was found by searchers Wednesday in some woods near his home in a rural area east of here, near the West Virginia border.

Authorities said Donald McAdoo, an honor student at LaFayette College at Eston, Pa., apparently took his own life with a rifle. A search began after McAdoo failed to return home from a hike in the woods Tuesday for target practice.

Polaris Launch From Ship Fails

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — The U.S. Navy's first attempt to launch its 2,900 mile range Polaris A3 from a ship ended in failure Wednesday when the missile veered off course shortly after liftoff and was destroyed.

The USS Observation Island, a surface vessel outfitted to fire the Polaris from a submarine - like launching tube in its aft section, fired the missile a few miles off Cape Canaveral.

Seconds after liftoff, the advanced model Polaris veered sharply off course and was destroyed.

Adenauer Announces Retirement

Will Accompany JFK To W. Berlin

BONN (UPI)—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer publicly announced his retirement in the fall Wednesday and said he must accompany President Kennedy if the U.S. leader goes to West Berlin during his coming German trip.

The 87-year-old West German Leader, in a television interview filmed during his current vacation in Italy and broadcast Wednesday night, said he "no longer understands all this talk" about his alleged desire to remain in his post beyond October or November.

Adenauer, who earlier told only a foreign press meeting about his retirement plans, said he wanted to stress "there can be no doubt" about his retirement plans.

On Kennedy's expected June trip to West Germany, Adenauer said it is important that Bonn government and parliamentary leaders join the President's party to Berlin.

Asked if he would join Kennedy on a West Berlin trip, he said, "I believe that is absolutely necessary."

"But even more necessary is, I believe, that if President Kennedy goes to Berlin the whole federal republic be represented," Adenauer said.

The U.S. Embassy in Bonn had no immediate comment on Adenauer's desire to go to Berlin with the President. A spokesman referred the matter to Washington. It was recalled that when Vice President Lyndon Johnson went to Berlin just after the wall was built, Washington resisted Adenauer's wish to go with him. This was because the administration wanted the visit to be an all-American action designed to show U.S. support of West Berlin.

Revenue Men Crack Down On Gambling In Chicago

CHICAGO (UPI) — Big-shot gamblers, small-fry bookies and bartenders suspected of tending to bets appeared Wednesday before a federal grand jury considering evidence collected in a massive raid aimed at drying up the crime syndicate's lucrative gambling take.

Forty - seven men subpoenaed during Tuesday's secretive, military-style strike against betting parlors and wire rooms appeared before the grand jury Wednesday night and early Wednesday.

Internal Revenue Service (IRS) agents simultaneously began sifting through bales of gambling slips and auditing them to determine the amount of unpaid excise tax owed the government by 60 suspected gamblers.

Most of the subpoenaed persons who paraded before the grand jury remained behind the closed doors only briefly, indicating they may have balked at answering questions.

But indictments were expected to follow.

Three - hundred imported IRS agents swooped down on 33 handbooks and five wire rooms, gathered up 90 boxes of bookie records and served subpoenaes. Sixty subpoenaes were issued, some of them naming kingpins in the Chicago underworld.

The raid, described by U.S. Dist. Atty. James P. O'Brien as the "largest of its kind to be carried out in the history of federal gambling enforcement," was a key part of Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy's drive against organized crime.

France Joins In Setting Up Nuclear Force

PARIS (AP)—France Wednesday joined its 14 fellow-members of the Atlantic Alliance in a decision to set up a unified nuclear command with air and sea strike forces, informed sources reported.

The action foreshadowed creation of a North Atlantic Treaty Organization nuclear force when alliance foreign ministers meet in Ottawa on May 22-24.

Qualified sources reported the decision after U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk addressed the NATO Permanent Council on current moves to establish a nuclear force within the framework of the alliance.

Besides France, the United States and Britain, nations that will contribute aircraft to the interallied force are West Germany, Italy, Canada, Belgium and Holland.

U.S. nuclear-powered submarines, now assigned to the Mediterranean, will be placed within the united command under U.S. Gen. Lyman Lemnitzer, who is supreme commander of Allied forces, Europe.

France's agreement to participate does not mean President Charles de Gaulle will throw French national nuclear resources into the NATO pool, as the British have done with their Vulcan bomber force. It means only that two French squadrons, now based in Germany, will join the unified command and will take on U.S nuclear weapons.

The plane, belonging to the Military Air Transport Service, was 3,000 feet off the end of the runway on its approach when it crashed into a marshy dump area and caught fire.

Study Indicates Fantastic Things By The Year 2,000

By JOSEPH D. HUTNYAN

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The average American worker turns out $15,500 worth of goods and services annually—more than twice his current contribution to the economy.

Half the electricity used in the United States is produced by nuclear energy.

There are 224 million automobiles on the nation's highways. That's more than two cars for every three Americans—men, women and children.

Americans are building 4.2 million homes a year, many of them made entirely of plastic.

The federal government's annual budget is half a trillion dollars and rising. And there's still a farm surplus.

Fantastic? The day is coming sooner than you think. In fact, according to a team of 25 economic experts, that day is only about 40 years away.

Envision Future

The economists, working for five years as a non-profit research group financed by Ford Foundation grants, tried to envision the United States at the dawn of the 21st century—the year 2000.

They found a bountiful, dynamic nation blessed with huge increases in worldly goods and 331 million people to enjoy them—IF

Their if—and it's a big one—is wise planning by today's Americans to make sure the nation still has enough land, water and minerals to carry out the promise.

The 1,000-page report released Sunday was the work of a research foundation known as Resources for the Future, Inc. It is believed the most complete assessment of the nation's natural resources ever made.

The study was directed by RFF president Joseph L. Fisher; Hans H. Lansberg, director of the RFF resource appraisal program, and Leonard L. Fischman, a consulting engineer in Washington.

Resources Plentiful

"Neither a long view of the past, nor current trends, nor our most careful estimates of future possibilities suggest any general running out of resources during the remainder of the century. . . or for a long time thereafter," the experts said.

But they stressed that the U. S. cannot just sit back and wait for all this prosperity to come along.

It will have to use the resources wisely. This includes a continuing program of research and technological achievement needed to fashion nature's raw materials into the tools of a modern society.

The researchers decided that history suggests the nation should be more than able to meet this challenge of the future.

The forecast is built on the assumption that the cold war will continue at about the present tempo during the next 40 years, and there will be no business depression severe enough to leave a deep scar on the economy.

British Want Polaris Rocket On Cash Basis

LONDON (UPI)—The British government announced Tuesday it will finance purchase of Polaris missiles from the United States on a "pay-as-you-go" plan in an apparent hedge against a change of political leadership.

Details of the controversial Polaris pact with the United States were presented in a government white paper released on the eve of a visit to London by U.S. Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara.

Although the white paper did not mention the number, it was understood that under the pact concluded in Nassau last December, the United States will sell Britain up to 100 long-range A3 seaborne Polaris missiles at a cost of about $1 billion.

The missiles will be placed in about four or six nuclear submarines to be built by Britain, but the Polaris fleet is not expected to be fully operational before 1970.

Tuesday's white paper revealed that under the pay-as-you-go financing system, a "trust fund" will be set up and each missile be paid for on delivery.

Republicans Send Research Director To London For Policy Study Of British Conservative Party

By RAYMOND LAHR

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The GOP has sent its research director, Dr. William B. Prendergast, on a mission to London to see if there are lessons for the Republican party in the operation of the British Conservative party.

Prendergast is back, impressed first by the methods used by the Conservatives for financing their party activities. In Britain, with a population one-third that of the United States, he found that the Conservative party has about two million dues - paying members on a variable dues scale.

The Republican National Committee has recently shown signs of glee because it enlisted about 70,000 in the first year of a campaign to sell sustaining memberships at $10 a year.

Because there are no financial disclosure laws for British political parties, the Conservative party's budget is a secret—unrevealed to Prendergast.

As a research director, he envied the party's research department, which employes about 50 persons compared with nine in the GOP research division. He interpreted this fact to mean that the Conservative party is relatively more affluent than Republican headquarters.

Prendergast also was impressed with another British practice, the employment of "party agents," full-time professionals working in nearly all parliamentary districts. He believes this idea might be tested in U. S. congressional districts on a pilot-project basis.

He will submit a report on his survey to Republican Chairman William E. Miller.

Various GOP leaders have been interested in Conservative party methods since it undertook an ambitious research project after the Labor party turned it out of office in 1945. The project was aimed at changing the "party image" and was credited with helping the Conservatives back to power.

The Republican leadership concluded that their party needed a new image after the GOP debacle in the 1958 state and congression al elections. However, the find ings made then were not long re member.

Members of the Flintstone Homemakers Club voted to assist the cancer drive in the Flintstone area. At the meeting held Friday evening in the Flintstone Methodist Church, Mrs. Eugene Kinton, Mrs. Kenneth McLaughlin and Mrs. Franklin Norris were named to make the house-to-house collection.

Mrs. Norris led the group in the Lord's Prayer. The history of the hymn of the month was given by Miss Pearl Wilson. The group sang, "Hosanna, Loud Hosanna," accompanied at the piano by Mrs. B. C. Robinette. Roll call was answered with household hints.

A demonstration entitled, "An Artist in an Apron" was given in three parts, each having made a new recipe and serving samples of it. Demonstrating "form," Mrs. William Mauzy demonstrated a ground meat dish she called "country pie." For color in food, Mrs. Norris baked a Koulitch bread; and for flavor, Mrs. Leslie Wigfield had pineapple lilies.

The draperies for the church social room were completed and hung. The gift for the month was received by Mrs. Mauzy. Hostesses for May were appointed. New from Buster Brown

A remarkable new shoe for children 3 and under

It is designed to avoid a lifetime of foot trouble

The Wikler Shoe™ by Buster Brown, created to let youngsters "go barefoot with shoes on"

Simon J. Wikler, Florida podiatrist and creator of this remarkable new shoe, believes young toes need room to flex and exercise, without deforming pressures. He concludes that the healthiest thing is to go barefoot, and cites these statistics to support his "barefoot theory": by age one, 8% have foot troubles; at age five, 41%; at age 20, 80%. Yet in countries where people go barefoot, Dr. Wikler has never heard of a native with fallen arches. Ill-fitting shoes would seem to be the trouble makers.

But since going barefoot is highly impractical, Dr. Wikler has developed the next best thing. The Wikler Shoe™ by Buster Brown has an unusual fan-shaped toe design which lets toes spread naturally, allows foot muscles to flex and develop fully. It has soft leather uppers with no irritating inside seams, and no metal shanks to interfere with the flexibility of the sole.

Conventional shoes force growing foot into cramped position without giving the toes a chance to attain their natural spread.

The ideal shoe for children allows plenty of room for the foot to flex, exercise and grow, without deforming pressures on the toes.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
4 ♡	Pass	Pass	Double
Pass	5 ◇	5 ♡	Pass
Pass	6 ◇	Pass	Pass
Double	Pass	Pass	Pass

East's opening four heart bid in today's hand is the indicated procedure with seven winners. The fact that he was not vulnerable against vulnerable opponents made such a call almost mandatory. When the auction reverted to North, he doubled and South bid five diamonds. While the double at this high level is normally intended to be left in, the partner of the doubler may exercise his option to bid if his hand is highly distributional and he has good prospects of scoring offensively. In the present case, South felt that the penalty would not provide adequate compensation for his giving up a prospective game.

West competed to five hearts since there appeared to be little hope of defeating the opponents. North's pass at this point is thoughtful call bearing a definite message which states: "Partner, I could obviously have doubled five hearts for penalties, but we may have a chance to make six diamonds, and I am leaving the choice up to you." South chose to bid the slam since he had a powerful hand, and his previous bid of five diamonds had promised very little more than distributional values.

East's double of six diamonds appears, on the surface, to manifest a lack of good judgment inasmuch as his holding has little defensive merit. However, the double of a slam bid by the player not on lead, is conventional and calls for an unusual opening. A heart lead is definitely barred since that on the bidding would be West's normal choice. East hoped that his partner would have sufficient length in clubs to diagnose the void. One ruff would not defeat the contract, but East suspected that West had a trick somewhere, else he would not have been apt to pass the six diamond bid.

West had little trouble in translating his partner's message for, with seven clubs in his hand, it appeared quite likely that East had none. The ten of clubs was accordingly led. A small club was played from the dummy and East ruffed. A heart was returned to West's ace and another club was trumped to complete the damages which amounted to a 500 point sting.

Had West gotten off to the ace of hearts lead, there still would have been time to set the contract, for East would follow with his lowest heart to suggest a shift. With a singleton heart in the dummy and no apparent reason for a continuation of the suit, the suit preference convention takes effect, and if East follows with an unnecessarily high heart it requests a shift to the higher ranking side suit—in this case, spades. A low heart asks, accordingly, for a club.

Society To Investigate Several Complaints

The Animal Welfare Society went on record as "being unable to comprehend Senator George Hughes' attitude towards Senate Bill 328, the peep law" at the meeting Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Earle Cobey, The Dingle. The group decided to continue working to place Allegany County under the state law and thanked friends in this cause.

It also was decided to investigate local commercial establishments concerning the slaughter of animals, to determine if the bill signed into law by Gov. Tawes last March is being enforced.

Mrs. Edward Finan reported several complaints have been received by the society of wholesale poisoning of birds in downtown Cumberland, and the consequent danger to other animals and possibly children. An investigation will be conducted immediately.

Plans to hold an art and objects of art show were given by Mrs. Fred Borden, chairman. It will be this summer to raise funds for the society. The next meeting will be May 28.

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I came to this country two years ago from Switzerland.

I do not understand a few peculiarities of your language. In your article the other day, you used the phrase "cleaning lady." In Europe a lady does not clean her own home, much less go out and clean up somebody else's dirt for a few dollars. The picture in my mind of Her Ladyship with dust rags and a broom is like a comic opera. My American neighbors refer to a woman who sells hair nets in the dime store as a saleslady.

Yesterday when my husband and I drove into a parking lot the man said, "Just leave the keys in your car. The lady will take care of it." A person in tight pants came up and THAT was "the lady."

In Europe a lady doesn't scrub floors, sell hair nets or park cars. Work is beneath her dignity. What does "lady" mean here?—SWISS MRS.

DEAR MRS.: In America we also have people who think work is beneath their dignity. They are called loafers.

The notion that work is for slobs is hopelessly outmoded — even in Europe. All work has dignity and merit if it is well done.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our 16-year-old daughter sent for your booklet entitled "Necking and Petting and How Far To Go." She said it was the best 20c she had ever spent.

Last night I found two cigarettes in the pocket of her blouse. (I was not snooping, Ann.) I always go through pockets before I put garments into the washing machine.

Now, I need some advice from you. Should I send for your booklet on Teenage Smoking and give it to her? She is a good girl, but headstrong. I don't want to make a mistake. What is your advice? —WEIGHING AND MEASURING

DEAR WEIGHING: Don't do it. Advice is useless unless it is sought. No teenager is going to pay a whit of attention to a booklet if mother sends for it.

Smoking is sometimes an act of rebellion against authority. If this is the case with your daughter the booklet would only make her more determined to keep smoking.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Something is on my mind which is causing me sleepless nights. You have helped others, maybe you can help me. How long do you think a man should wait to remarry after his first wife passes away?

My sister was ill for two years. She was a lovely person and a fine wife and mother. Five months after the funeral her husband married another woman. There was no need for him to rush into this marriage as his children are grown.

I am deeply hurt by this and feel that his fast second marriage was a slap in the face to the memory of my beloved sister and to our family. What do you think of a woman who would marry a man so soon after his wife was buried? What do you think of a man who would do this?—BLUE GRASS HEARTACHE

DEAR HEARTACHE: This question comes up often—almost never is it raised by the widow or the widower. Usually, it is raised by a relative.

It is impossible to know what is in someone else's heart. Those five months may have been like five centuries to the one who was left. You should be happy your sister's husband is able to pick up the pieces and make a new life for himself. Don't allow your grief to blind you to the realities of life.

If alcohol is robbing you or someone you love of health and dignity, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Help For The Alcoholic," enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Club Has Program On Food, Art

Two demonstrations were given at the meeting of the Progressive Young Women's Club held recently at the home of Mrs. K. O. Nelson, McMullen Highway. The meeting was opened with the hymn, "Christ the Lord Is Risen Today." The Lord's Prayer was said in unison and roll call was answered with facts pertaining to Easter.

The first demonstration was given by Mrs. James Armstrong, nutrition chairman. It was entitled, "An Artist in an Apron." Using charts, Mrs. Armstrong stressed color, form, texture and flavor in cooking. Conducting a quiz, she asked for various textures. It was won by Mrs. Mabel White naming the most. She was awarded a prize, of a Danish modern salt and pepper set. She distributed a recipe for Koulitch, a sweet bread used at Easter time. She had made it in a mushroom shape, iced and decorated.

A second demonstration was on art, by Mrs. White. She exhibited bedroom slippers and a decorated gift box she had made. Mrs. White also told of the workshop she attended.

Two new members were accepted. They are Mrs. Harvey Wilt and Mrs. Alexander Mendy. Guests were Mrs. Adam Baer, county president; Mrs. Charlotte Folk and Mrs. James Dickinson.

Announcement was made of the Rural Women's Short Course luncheon to be held April 30 at Barton's Restaurant, McMullen Highway. April 25 the Cresaptown Parent-Teacher Association will honor the teachers with a "thank you" dinner at the Ali Ghan Shrine Club, beginning at 6:30. It is open to the public.

An appeal was made by Mrs. Martin Sharp for members to save soap to send to New Windsor.

It was announced that the club will have a flower cutting exchange at the next meeting, which will be May 3, at the home of Mrs. Nina Suder, Winchester Road. Roll call will be answered with "green thumb hints."

Concluding the business session, members continued their knitting project. Following the singing of "In Your Easter Bonnet," Mrs. Harry Barton was honored. She will leave for New York Friday for the Holy Lands. The Easter motif was carried out in the buffet style refreshments. A pink and green color scheme was carried out in the decorations and cake, enscribed, "Joyous Journey." An Easter bunny and pink tapers in silver holders centered the table.

Accessories Make Fashion News

A fashion-wise woman should always pay particular attention to seasonal news about accessories. Your wardrobe may be somewhat limited by many factors—finances, figure difficulties, and the like—but there's little limit to the imaginative things you can do with accessories.

One such interesting note this spring is the use of white artificial flowers on Dior daytime suits. Nothing could more enhance this year's young, bright look than the fresh touch of flowers. Good both with suits and with the popular jacket-dress ensembles, a flower spray is also a way to add the spring's popular pastels — white, yellow, peachy-pink—if you must forego them otherwise.

Both Jean Desses and the Italian designer Capucci feature vests in their collections. While surely not suitable for everyone, you might consider this to vary your spring suit.

The sheath, continuing in high style; and the close-to-the-body lines featured by Pierre Cardin and other designers; make belts an obviously good place to do a little experimenting. Many wide belts, some "mock" belts are featured. They are not worn tightly. Wide belts, again, are not for every figure!

All kinds of jackets are popular —long, waist-length, short. They might almost be termed accessories themselves, for their power to add variety to your wardrobe. The use of buttons, on the jackets, on the vests, as trim, is one of the most interesting features to watch in spring and summer styles.

Evening costumes feature a great deal of embroidery, beaded and sequin trim—and Cardin adds an exotic touch of drama with bird-of-paradise feathers in the hair.

Happy news note: shoe lines are modifying, with less drastically pointed toes, lower and stacked heels. If the trend has started, it ought to be possible to look forward to some normal, good-looking footgear in another season or two!

Choose accessories carefully, and they'll add magic touches of individuality and variety to your wardrobe. Another sort of "accessory" which is vital to your every costume is the properly chosen foundation garment. To analyze your needs in this field, why not send a self-addressed, stamped envelope, 10c and your request for "Figured For You," our booklet giving the "inside" story? Police Quiz Wife Of Man Found In Ice

CHICAGO (UPI) — Detectives questioned the widow of a slain Minneapolis bus driver Wednesday about her suspicions that a robber boy friend bludgeoned her estranged husband to death and left his body packed in dry ice in an abandoned auto.

Mrs. Ruth Danielson, 34, flew to Chicago and underwent questioning about the strange triangle that involved her, her husband and a suspect in the killing who was mowed down by police bullets during a robbery at Davenport, Iowa.

The body, found Tuesday in the trunk of an automobile in a parking lot at O'Hare International Airport, was identified Wednesday as Lloyd Richard Danielson, 42. The identification was made by Danielson's brother, Francis, of Grantsburg, Wis.

Detective Inspector Calvin Hawkinson of Minneapolis said "in our opinion" the slayer probably was Harold Carl Steen, 38, also of Minneapolis, who dated Mrs. Danielson and roomed with her husband after the Danielsons separated last October.

Mrs. Danielson said she "figured all along that he (Steen) done him (her husband) in."

Gov. Tawes Urged To Sign Racial Measure

BALTIMORE (AP) — Six members of the Maryland Commission on Interracial Problems and Relations urged Gov. Tawes Wednesday to sign a bill that ultimately will remove some of them.

William C. Rogers Sr., chairman, polled the commission at the request of an aide of the governor. Only Dr. Edward N. Wilson called for a veto.

The bill passed by the recent legislature will require the governor, as vacancies occur, to appoint commission members on a specified geographical basis.

At present, seven are from the Baltimore area and one from Somerset county. There is one vacancy.

In the future, the commission would have to include two members from the Eastern Shore, three from Baltimore City, one from Western Maryland, two from Southern Maryland and one either from Baltimore or Harford counties.

The commission's work will take on added importance in June when it will be charged with enforcing a new state law against racial discrimination by hotels and restaurants.

Eleven counties, including eight of the nine on the Eastern Shore, will be exempt from the law. This prompted some opposition to having members from those areas on the commission.

However, some members of the commission felt that representation might help in bringing excluded counties under jurisdiction of the equal accommodations law.

The commission also named a new executive secretary, Parren J. Mitchell 40, of Baltimore. He will fill a post vacated by Douglas B. Sands who resigned in February to join the State Department.

Mitchell, by court order, was the first Negro in 1950 to be accepted as a graduate student on the College Park campus of the University of Maryland. He received a master's degree in sociology.

He has been supervisor of early release of prisoners for the domestic relations divisions of the Baltimore Supreme Bench since 1957.

He is of a family active in the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. His brother, Clarence, is director of the Washington branch and his sister-in-law, Juanita, is Maryland counsel.

Bob Wilcoxson Pleads Guilty To Robbery

Seven Bank Jobs Netted $205,873

NEW YORK (AP) — Bobby Randell Wilcoxson, 32, pleaded guilty in Brooklyn federal court Wednesday to seven bank robberies, including one in which a bank guard was slain in Brooklyn in December, 1961.

Judge Walter Bruchhausen set sentencing for June 21.

Wilcoxson's co-defendants, Albert Frederick Nussbaum, 27, and Peter C. Curry Jr., 23, are scheduled to go on trial May 8.

Wilcoxson faces from 10 years to life. The seven bank jobs involved $205,873.

United States Atty. Joseph P. Hoey said Wilcoxson is cooperating with the Federal Bureau of Investigation concerning several unsolved crimes.

An eighth bank robbery, in Rochester, N.Y., in which Wilcoxson and Nussbaum are accused of taking $57,000, has not been the subject of any indictment handed up as yet. Wilcoxson will plead to that when he comes up for sentencing.

Wilcoxson was on the FBI's "10 most wanted" list prior to his capture in Baltimore last November. Nussbaum had been picked up in Buffalo, N.Y., a week before. Curry had been taken into custody in Brooklyn in February, 1962.

Picked up with Wilcoxson in Baltimore was his girl friend, Jacqueline Ruth Rose. FBI agents also found $21,000 in their hideaway.

She is being held in Buffalo where she faces conspiracy charges in connection with a bank robbery there.

Wilcoxson pleaded guilty to two robberies in Buffalo, two in Great Valley, Pa., near Pittsburgh, and one each in Brooklyn, Philadelphia and Washington, D.C.

Henry Kraus, 53, a bank guard, was killed by machine gun fire in a holdup of the Lafayette National Bank in Brooklyn.

Demand Is Booming

Steel demand is booming. The industry rang up its 10th consecutive weekly production advance last week.

Automakers are ordering massive amounts of steel to keep up their high rate of production. And they, along with other major users, are stockpiling as a hedge against a possible strike.

The new developments obviously will have a strong influence on the thinking of the United Steelworkers of America. They can reopen their contract for wage negotiations April 30. If agreement isn't reached, they can strike 90 days later.

The Wheeling increase is different from that initiated a year ago by U.S. Steel in that it is selective rather than across the board.

Film Producer Challenges State Movie Censorship

BALTIMORE (AP)—A motion picture distributor asked the Circuit Court Wednesday to declare Maryland's film censorship law unconstitutional.

Robert T. Mahrenke, owner of the Cinema Film Exchange, charged that the state's censorship law is in violation of the due process clause of the fourteenth amendment to the U.S. Constitution. The complaint also said the Maryland law violated the first article of the constitution, which reserves to Congress the powers to regulate interstate commerce.

Mahrenke's complaint, filed by attorney Morgan L. Amaimo, said the state board of motion picture censors prohibited the film, "The Peep Shows of Paris," from being shown at the the Pocomoke Drive In Theater in Pocomoke City.

The film was leased in California last August by Mahrenke's firm for showing in Pocomoke City on April 5, the complaint said.

The board ruled the film contained scenes showing exotic dances, the complaint said, which made it indecent and affecting morals.

Mahrenke charged the board is "incompetent to pass upon the censorship of local community standards affecting the morals, sexual morals and general sexual behaviors of the citizens of the state of Maryland" in connection with films moving through interstate commerce.

The censorship law "is meaningless and utterly without foundation as to what sexual patterns may or what sexual patterns may not be exhibited..." the complaint said.

Judge Shirley B. Jones ordered the board of censors to show cause within 30 days why relief should not be granted to Mahrenke.

Tawes Urges Civil Defense Preparedness

State Must Accept Danger Of Attack

BALTIMORE (AP) — Maryland must accept the possibility of an enemy attack and prepare for it, Gov. Tawes said Wednesday.

"The attack may never come, but if it does and we are not prepared for it, chaos will result," he told representatives of industry at a seminar on civil defense.

"I am looking to this group, and the part of society that it represents, for real action and leadership in our state.

"It is absolutely necessary that we plan now how to survive this possible attack and determine what measures and actions would be necessary to restore as rapidly as possible our normal mode of life.

"Government alone cannot accomplish these tasks. We need your support."

Gov. Tawes took issue with those he said who believe in "peace at any price."

"They are endangering our national security," he asserted. "I will have none of them, and I am certain neither will you.

"America was not made strong by the fainthearted."

There are more than 35 thousand swimming pools in the United States. Approximately one-half of these are private.

Want Regulations Changed For Tests

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Speed boat racers asked the Tidewater Fisheries Commission Wednesday to change a proposed regulation so they will be able to test their equipment without violating the law.

Representatives of the Prop Riders of the Potomac, a speedboat club, said a proposed regulation of the commission would prohibit them from taking their boats out for test runs.

Thresher was launched at Portsmouth, N.H., Naval Shipyard and commissioned Aug. 3, 1961. The Portsmouth yard, in a pamphlet history published a year ago, described her as "the finest attack and killer submarine in the world."

An improved version of the earlier nuclear submarine Skipjack, the Thresher "combines advanced sonar, deeper depth, newer weapons and emphasis on the elimination of noise as operating features," the Portsmouth publication said.

The Thresher is 279 feet long and 3,750 tons.

accord and not imposed by force." He said an authority established by force would be suspected of partiality and that nations would be right in not yielding to it.

Promote Human Rights

Pope John said the world authority should not replace individual national governments, but create an environment safeguarding peace. He said the authority must promote human rights and tackle problems of an economic, social, political and cultural nature posed on a world level.

Indicating the United Nations could provide the basis, he said it was his "earnest wish that the United Nations Organization—in its structure and in its means—may become ever more equal to the magnitude and nobility of its tasks, and that the day may come when every human being will find therein an effective safeguard."

Therfeore, he said, nuclear tests must be banned and a complete and effectively controlled disarmament achieved.

On other topics he said:

Racial discrimination: It can no longer be justified. Relations between states call "for the elimination of every trace of racism." Different ethnic groups must communicate and not live apart.

Colonialism: "No one wants to feel subject to political powers located outside his own country or ethnical group. There are no political communities which are superior by nature and none which is inferior by nature."

Foreign economic aid: It should be given with the donors' avoiding any intention of political domination.

The encyclical was dated Holy Thursday. The Pope is expected to call it to the particular attention of world leaders Thursday when he receives diplomats in the Sistine Chapel.

Something the Founding Fathers worried about: If the masses of voters were given the right to vote themselves "something for nothing," would there not be unlimited demands? In an effort to correct this, certain checks and balances were set up. However, in the 1930s, the last barriers to runaway demands for "something for nothing" were broken down. Now, the sky's the limit! Vote yourself a money tree!

But wait! This is income-tax-paying time—a reminder that in the long run there is no such thing as "something for nothing."

On May 21, the wheat growers will vote in a nationwide referendum on a wheat pricing program advanced and ballyhooed by the Administration. Congress last decided to put the proposed program before the farmers to approve or disapprove. The Administration, ever on the side of more and stricter controls over virtually every phase of American life, is campaigning vigorously for a "yes" vote in the referendum. A snow storm of propaganda to influence the results of the "free election" is emanating from the Department of Agriculture—and is being paid for with public funds.

Wheat producers have been voting for government programs in a more or less routine fashion for several years. Previous programs have carried "controls" of a sort, but there have been numerous exceptions and limitations. So, wheat producers have not had to face up to the full implications of going down the supply-management road to a regimented agriculture. But the situation is different this year. The multiple-price certificate plan of the Administration, being submitted in the referendum, includes the tightest, most binding government controls ever seriously considered for any farm commonity. In addition to providing much stricter acreage allotments than growers have experienced in the past and a new type of marketing quota, the Administration's plan provides for diverted-acre controls and cross compliance. It also would give Agriculture Secretary Freeman vast powers to regulate all handlers, processors and distributors of wheat from the farm to the consumer.

Wheat producers are seriously disturbed over the future of the wheat industry. Many believe that defeat of the Administration's plan would clear the way for the enactment of a sensible solution to the wheat surplus problem.

The real issue in the wheat referendum is not just a wheat program. If these provisions are adopted for the wheat program, how long do you think it would be before they are extended to other programs? If we go the supply-management road with wheat, then with feed grain, we will have taken a long step toward the adoption of compulsory controls for livestock, dairy and poultry products, and all the rest. The real issue is whether the farms of America are to be run by farmers or by a Government bureaucracy.

The farmer who is eligible to vote in the May 21 referendum and who fails to do so may be giving away his economic freedom for all time.

"117 WAYS TO CUT THE BUDGET"—That's the title of a new brochure published by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Another reminder of the saneness and soundness of the American people "back home" is refreshing. A colleague of mine from a sister State tells about what happened recently when he and others of his State's delegation in Washington received the usual mimeographed announcement that a new post office was to be built in his State. The Post Office Department's announcement said, as usual, that the information would not be released to the newspapers for a few hours. That gave the Senator the opportunity to send out his own "releases", implying that he had something to do with what the Administration was doing in his State. The other U. S. Senator from his State and the Congressman representing the district in which the post office was to be constructed also rushed out "releases" to the town's one paper, a weekly. The three gentlemen in Washington received a humdinger of a letter from the paper's editor. He said that if they had anything to do with getting the new post office, they ought to be ashamed of wasting public funds. He went on to say: "At a time when the national debt is $300,000,000,000 and we cannot balance the budget, going deeper and deeper in debt, Washington wants to spend $177,000 on a new post office in our little village. Our present post office, the newest building in town, only 12 years old, and costing $27,000, is more than adequate. We know where the $177,000 will come from — from us. You had better think twice before wanting to claim any credit for that kind of waste of public money."

The bills which the White House recommends are not the bills which Congress passes, generally speaking. In fact, the Administration bills, as originally written are rarely the bills we finally vote on. When the appsopriate committee of the Senate or the House of Representatives gets through with an Administration bill, it seldom looks like the original. The committees examine each bill carefully, their professional staffs make research studies, they hold hearings and listen to expert opinions, and then, in the end, they either vote the whole thing down or vote to report favorably their final version. The bills which are reported in the Senate are often changed still further on the Senate floor. It sometimes happens that a Senator who introduced a bill must vote against his own bill, it's having been changed so much.

So, when you hear that the White House has recommended a certain bill which happens to be obnoxious to you, you may rest assured that it has a long and hard road to travel.

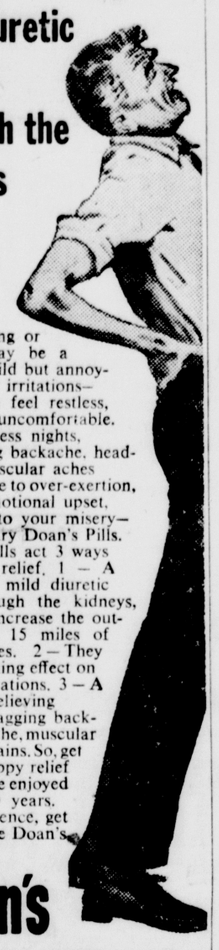

There has been criticism of the present Congress for its deliberate pace. As a matter of fact, the deliberate pace of Congress safeguards your rights. By some distorted logic, the merit of a legislative session has come to be judged by the number of laws enacted. If these are numerous, Congress is thought to have done well; if the number of bills sidetracked is high, the session is deemed a failure. This misconception indicates that we have forgotten the whole theory of our form of government. When the Constitution was written, the office of President was given much power, but great care was exercised to insure that this power should constantly be held in check. It was believed that statute law could be kept to a minimum, that people left to themselves would, on the whole, govern themselves according to mor-

New Straw Hats Offer Variety Of Selections

By WALTER LOGAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — There still is some confusion in the country as to which is the real Straw Hat Day, May 15 or Decoration Day, but whichever a man chooses he'll find lighter weights, lighter colors, metal ornaments and brighter bands.

The most popular style in early sales appears to be the pinch front with center dent though the center crease is very much in the picture. Ivy League devotees still insist on the telescope shape with classic silk foulard or Madras puggree.

Stetson introduces a "seersucker look" which is achieved with a wide, bold seersucker type band on a dark-toned Ivy League straw, giving an effect of cool, crips summertime. The Ivy League is in a bound edge model with narrow snap brim featuring a deep curl in the back.

Hat Corporation of America (Dobbs-Cavanagh-Knox) emphasizes clear bright champagne tones in a departure from the traditional dark grays, blues and browns.

Adam also emphasizes lighter colors with the dark charcoal tones replaced by medium tones of brown, grey and blue. Shown with them are offwhites and sand tones and, for the more daring, Bermuda and Horizon blue straws.

Byer-Rolnick (Resistol) pioneers an extremely lightweight straw, a Floretine braid something like an Italian Milan but lighter and finer. More casual is a silver palm braid in such colors as black, jet brown, putty-colored adobe, dark gray dusk and black jade, a green so dark it takes a second glance to make sure it isn't black.

Disney, with a wide array of coconuts, Milans and Panamas, has fun with casual hats showing among other things a center crease cloth hat in bright plaid, and a series of straws decorated with everything from golf balls to playing cards and badminton sets.

In addition to "fun hats" decorated with such assorted or ornaments as brushes, straw animals, rakes and hoes, Adam also shows a plantation hat for the beach—a wide brimmed, shallow crowned straw with a bright trim.

New and unusual from Cavanagh is a Japanese Kabuki silk in olive, black or tan with a nubby finish, and a plaid madras bucket hat for golf or sportswear. But in the straw line a favorite light color is whipcord, a tan with suggestions of grey and olive.

As for hat shapes, Knox reports big sales of a new tapered crown to give a slimmer silhouette for the natural shoulder set. If you want to look more rugged there is a quarter front pinch which starts farther back and gives a fuller front.

TV Notes

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dorothy Loudon's work on Garry Moore's CBS hour this season has won her a regular berth for 1963-64. The singing comedienne will appear in 13 of the first 26 shows of next season.

The second batch of the "Biography" syndicated series of Official Films, produced by David L. Wolper and narrated by Mike Wallace, will include half-hour programs dealing with Pope Pius XII, Konrad Adenauer, Fidel Castro, Eamon de Valera, Wendell Willkie, Grace Kelly, Babe Didrickson and Princess Margaret.

Singer Andy Williams will be back on the NBC network next season with a one-hour show, but not as a weekly feature. He will do 12 variety shows, to be aired on various Tuesday nights, October through May.

ABC has reserved 9:30-10 p.m. Fridays for a new situation comedy series called "The Farmer's Daughter" starring Inger Stevens. It will reach the air next fall. Cathleen Nesbitt, William Windom and Philip Coolidge are regulars on the series. Miss Stevens plays a naive farm girl who moves from Minnesota to Washington, D.C., to work for a congressman.

Fred MacMurray has changed his mind about leaving ABC's "My Three Sons" series and will be back for its fourth season next fall.

Bob Banner, the busy producer who turns out the Garry Moore hours and "Candid Camera" weekly for CBS, as well as an occasional Carol Burnett special, plans to put his firm into Broadway stage production next August with a musical called "Apollo and Miss Agnes." It is based on a popular French play by Giraudoux, "The Apollo of Bellac."

Strong Mayor Charter Approved

SOUTH CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — South Charleston voters, by a 373 vote majority, Tuesday approved a new charter calling for a strong mayor type of government.

Unofficial returns showed 1,559 voters casting ballots for the measure and 1,186 against it. The new charter goes into effect July 1 with a general election to be held in June, 1964.

Population Boom Forecast For Paris

PARIS (UPI) — Paris will be a booming, modern city of 12 to 16 million persons by the end of the century, according to a government forecast.

The forecast was released by Paul Delouvrier, government planner for the Paris area.

It has become more and more evident that modern Paris, with 8 million residents and 2 million vehicles, cannot operate on the same streets laid down in the 18th century. The city then had 2 million residents and 100,000 horses.

The planner's design calls for expansion of the city's two suburban superhighways to make a network of 10 express roads skirting the city. Then fast subway trains would carry workers to their jobs.

The report said present - day Parisians are among the country's most poorly lodged persons, with 80 per cent of the city's homes more than 30 years old and 2 million of the city's 3.3 million homes having neither a bath nor a shower.

Some 500,000 of these homes and apartments don't even have water on the same floor, according to the report.

Delouvrier's report was concerned principally with the city's future growth through 1975, but included additional surveys of the probable situation through the year 2,000. It was felt that any sensible planning would have to take into account the city's development over the next 30 years or more.

The report hailed the rapid growth of provincial cities as a factor which would save Paris from strangling itself, predicting Lyons might attain 2 million inhabitants and Marseilles, Lille and the Nancy-Metz region might reach 1.5 million inhabitants between now and the turn of the century.

But to keep traffic moving into Paris and give cars places to park, the report proposed parking garages for 30,000 cars near the city's main railway stations and another 30,000 scattered through downtown areas.

The completion of present work turning the rest of the scenic riverside walkways along the Seine river in central Paris into high speed roadways for east-west traffic also was suggested.

Local Scrap Yards Must Obey Law

The Mayor and Council Monday approved a large number of applications for city licenses and also heard a request that scrap yards be subject to previous controls and agreements.

City Engineer Charles R. Nuzum said that issuance of a scrap yard license should be subject to the yard's inspection to see if scrap is confined to the stated limits. He said he felt there are some which might be in violation and asked that licenses be passed subject to regulatory measures.

Council agreed this procedure should be followed and Finance Commissioner Frederick J. Hill said before a license is issued the question of unpaid taxes, liens or other costs due also should be taken into consideration.

Astronauts Warned Of 'Space Smog'

By DOUGLAS DILTZ

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — America's astronauts could die of "Space Smog," according to one of the nation's leading bioastronautic scientists.

This chilling possibility was advanced by Dr. Thomas B. Weber, who said:

"A tightly-sealed capsule in outer space might be turned into a death chamber by a smog of contaminants emitted from the astronaut's own body."

He said these contaminants might become lethal during an extended period of time in the closed "trap-like" atmosphere of manned interplanetary probes and long-duration space stations. The more men in the spaceship, the more deadly it could become.

"This looms as possibly the most pressing problem we face in preparing for future deep space travel," Weber said.

"Space smog would be 100 times worse than the smog plaguing Los Angeles."

Weber said that whereas smog in the earth's atmosphere is continually circulated, a confined spaceship would surround man with "a hostile environment of a vacuum" that would breed a lethal concentration of "space smog."

On a long space trip, Weber said, a number of chemicals from the body such as methane, acetone and ammonia "could tear up the liver or dehabilitate the lungs." A lethal dosage of "space smog" could come from the astronaut's breath, saliva, sweat and other functions.

"As man enters space his bacteria will accompany him," the scientist said.

"For example, the skin bacteria could decompose many of the materials exuded through the skin and produce sizable amounts of such contaminants as organic acids.

"New unsuspected toxicants of high concentration probably would would enter the spacecraft's atmosphere."

Weber said that, as of now, there are almost no original investigations to be found on toxic hazards in manned space environmental systems. What is needed first, he said, is identification of the contaminants and then a means of removing those that could cause trouble.

"I have been studying this crucial problem for six years and have so far found at least 400 different materials the human body gives off," he said. He added that 80 per cent of these possess a potential of being or becoming deadly.

"In the spacecraft's atmosphere they might not only accumulate, but could react with one another into a contaminant 100 times more toxic than either in its original state," Weber said.

Weber, a former U. S. Air Force scientist at the Aerospace Medical Center at Brooks Air Force Base, San Antonio, Tex., is one of the nation's few authorities on space toxicants. He recently became manager of biastronautics for Beckman Instruments, Inc.

"Russia is way ahead of us in simulated space studies involving toxicants and our lack of experience in this field could be a major roadblock when we try to embark on manned flights to the planets," Weber said.

He said the seriousness of "space smog" has not yet arisen with astronauts because flights to date, such as those in Mercury capsules, have not been long enough for ill effects.

Writer Happy He Left Television For Movies

By DUNCAN FRAZIER

NEW YORK (UPI)—Abby Mann left television for motion pictures, and no one could be happier about the change than the young scriptwriter himself.

The first time "out" in Hollywood he won the 1961 Academy Award for his "Judgment at Nuremberg" screen play. This was adapted from a script he wrote for a television show which received scant critical attention — and therein lies one clue to his preference for movie work.

"The media (television) is filled with mediocre, Madison Avenue mentality," he said in an interview. "It's not only the sponsors, either. The producers and directors both are at fault. The standards on television are low."

Mann, 36, likes film work because it gives him more freedom and greater opportunity to pursue his ambitions as a serious writer.

His subjects tend to be somewhat controversial, and the reason for this can be understood by a question which he asks himself in evaluating a movie:

"Does the picture attack or explain something that people are not prepared to accept when they come into the theater?"

For example, he said, "In 'Judgement at Nuremberg' I was trying to show that patriotism can be evil."

The word "show" is crucial to an appreciation of Mann's style and purpose, because he thinks it is not enough "simply to SAY a thing is bad."

His latest original script was for "A Child is Waiting," a movie about mentally retarded or "defective" children in which some popular notions about them are attacked.

Here he sought to "show" that persons should not be rejected just because they are unable to conform to what society expects of them.

"A movie must first succeed as entertainment or as a work of art," he said. "But I like to write about the things of our times. I think the world should enter in."

The book deals with slum life in Mexico City.

"Eighty per cent of the world lives that way," Mann said. "If eighty per cent of the world lives that way, why shouldn't we write about it?"

Mann blames some of the ills of the movie industry in this country on its failure to focus on modern problems.

Mann, a bachelor who lives in Beverly Hills, Calif., also is working on the screen plays for "The Condemned of Altona," a play by Jean-Paul Sartre set in post-Nazi Germany, and Katherine Anne Porter's novel, "Ship of Fools."

A native of Philadelphia, Mann was reared in Pittsburgh, went to Temple University for a year, served a hitch with the Army in World War II and then came to New York (Greenwich Village).

He enrolled at NYU on the GI bill "but started cutting classes more and more and dropped out after one year."

Mann began working in television "eight or ten years ago" after observing, as an unsuccessful playwright, "I'm going to have to make a living somehow."

"It's very difficult for a young playwright," he said. "Even when your play is produced, you get practically nothing for it.

MORE BOMBS

FARMINGDALE, N.Y. (UPI)—The Air Force, in a move to increase its war punch, has ordered a major increase in the weapons payload capacity of its F-105D tactical fighter. Modifications already under way on the supersonic jet built by Republic Aviation here will permit to carry as many as 16 bombs of 750 pounds each on external mounts as contrasted to the four it now carries and will increase its total bomb capacity to six tons, unprecedented for a single-engine aircraft.

CENTENNIAL SCRAPBOOK

The War for the Union 1861-65 in Pictures

No. 261 "For want of a nail the shoe was lost, / For the want of a shoe the horse was lost, / For the want of a horse the rider was lost, / For the want of a rider, the battle was lost, / For the want of a battle the kingdom was lost. / And all for the want of a horseshoe nail."—Poor Richard's Almanac.

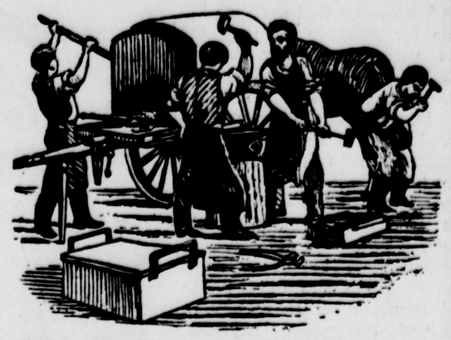

For want of horseshoes battles were being lost by the Confederates in 1863. The Confederacy had no factory equipped with the marvelous horseshoe machines of Henry Burden, and it was short of iron and blacksmiths.

In the quarter century before the war, cavalry and artillery horses as well as dray and carriage horses of the united nation had been shod with the Burden shoe. "The big boned Scot with the shaggy eyebrows had invented a machine for making it and obtained his first patent in 1835," it was recalled in Steelways Magazine. Army depots throughout the country kept ample stocks of the product of the Burden factory at Troy, N. Y.

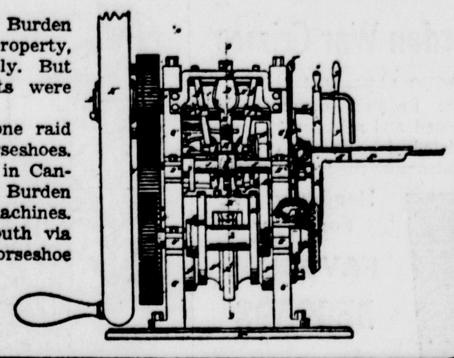

With the outbreak of war, the stores of Burden shoes in the South became Confederate property, and were sufficient for army needs initially. But after two years of fighting, replacements were sorely needed.

Jeb Stuart's cavalry made more than one raid for the purpose of capturing supplies of horseshoes. An ex-Southerner named Moses, who lived in Canada, was induced to try to get into the Burden factory at Troy and steal some of the machines. These were to be transported into the South via Canada. The plot failed, and so did the horseshoe supply of the Confederate forces. Footsore, ill-shod or unshod horses broke down in increasing numbers.

Big Planetarium Project Is Plagued By Delays

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—The stars in the sky remain hidden from indoor sky-gazers who want to know when the city's new $1.2 million planetarium will bring them forth.

The big planetarium project has been plagued by one delay after another.

"Any day now," said one planetarium official, but when a newsman asked point-blank "will it be open by Easter?" the answer was "No. . . no, I mean I really can't say . . . I just can't, that's all."

Ground was broken for the planetarium in Forest Park on August 29, 1960. Bad weather in the spring of 1961 caused construction delay.

A newspaper dispatch said "planetarium work progresses rapidly . . . target date for completion now set for Dec. 1 (1961)."

Then were delays in building of the planetarium's $175,000 projector mechanism in Japan. At one time, heavy rains in Japan stymied operations at the Tokyo optical factory.

Then, a series of headlines as months went by:

May 9, 1962—"Planetarium Expected to Open in Late Summer."

Aug. 21, 1962—"Rains in Japan Delay Planetarium Opening."

Oct. 4, 1962 "Setbacks Delay Opening."

Oct. 30, 1962—"My Stars, Another Delay."

Nov. 6, 1962 — "Plantarium Projector Arrives—At Last."

Planetarium officials then figured the target date Dec. 1, 1962. But there was some delay in arrival of Japanese technicians needed to help set up the projector and get it operating.

While the city waited, the big projector remained packed in 13 crates weighing a total of 16,004 pounds.

Three technicians arrived and the giant projector was installed in the now-completed building.

But the new planetarium staff, headed by 26-year-old director Charles A. Schweighauser, had to learn all about the intricate mechanism. The projector is considered one of the most complex.

Then, just before New Year's day, another newspaper headline—"Planetarium's Opening Pushed Back to Feb. 1."

"We're still having practice session," said Schweighauser. "We understand how the projector works, but we still are not sufficiently expert to put it through its paces without a hitch, smoothly. We need more practice."

Playing it safe, Schweighauser now says: "I just can't estimate an opening date."

The primary duty of Congress is to prevent that outcome. The true measure of a Congress could very well be the measure of bad bills it refuses to pass.

Within a week or two we'll be mailing out our annual questionnaire, for again we want to know what you think. That's the only purpose of the questionnaire. Should we ever permit our questionnaire to become debased by using it to try to prove we're right about something or other, then the questionnaire as such would lose its value. I think the past success of our annual poll-taking and the respect in which it is held comes from the fact that we try to make it completly unbiased — an honest, objective effort to learn just how the people feel about the various important national and international problems which confront us.

Kentucky Colonel Symbol Of The Bluegrass State

By SY RAMSEY

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP)—"I give you a man dedicated to the good things in life and to the kindly rites with which it is surrounded. In a trying world darkened by hate and misunderstanding, he is a symbol of those virtues in which men find gallant faith."

Does this prose refer to Albert Schweitzer? U Thant? Marlon Brando?

Not at all. It is a tribute written in 1947 to the mythical specimen known as a Kentucky Colonel.

That gentleman also is recognized in traditional Kentucky lingo by:

"A brace of dueling pistols, a plug of chewing tobacco, an overwhelming desire to hunt, fight, place a bet or make love to some woman, and a quart bottle of Bourbon whisky."

He also wears a white goatee, a pair of sideburns and a veneer of culture.

The Kentucky Colonel is the commonwealth's finest promotional sterotype. Every decade or so he gets cleaned up, redescribed, reinforced or reused.

For example, some debate arose in 1952 about the proper looks and dress of a Kentucky Colonel. Well, suh, the state publicity division got busy and sponsored an artist's contest.

The next year the new colonel emerged as the trademark now familiar to tourists and minus the whisky bottle.

Also missing are the traditional props of julep glass, veranda column, manservant in the background, walking cane, watch chain, finger ring and lapel emblem.

The idea is to emphasize the spirit of hospitality rather than the trappings of a bygone era. These days Kentucky is almost as eager for tourists as for industries.

Legally, the Kentucky Colonel once amounted to far more than the name on a decorative governor's commission.

When Kentucky entered the union in 1792 all able-bodied men were supposed to join the state militia. Genuine colonels often were the backbone of such outfits.

But somehow Kentucky and colonel became inseparably linked in folklore. It is safe to assume that an unknown humorist was not speaking of a military commander when he penned his famous quatrain:

In the bluegrass region
A paradox was born;
The corn was full of kernels,
And the colonels full of corn.

Martin Marietta Gets New Contract

WASHINGTON (AP) — An additional award of $5.1 million to the Martin Marietta Corp. for space work in Baltimore was announced Wednesday.

Rep. Carlton R. Sickles, D-Md., said he was advised the contract is for research and developments on the man launch vehicle under the Gemini program.

The additional contract, he said, brings to $55 million the amount awarded to Martin Marietta.

Oil Co. Head Dies

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Joseph Newton Pew Jr., 76, board chairman of the Sun Oil Co., and long a financial pillar of the Republican party, died Tuesday of bronchial pneumonia. He had been ill for several months.

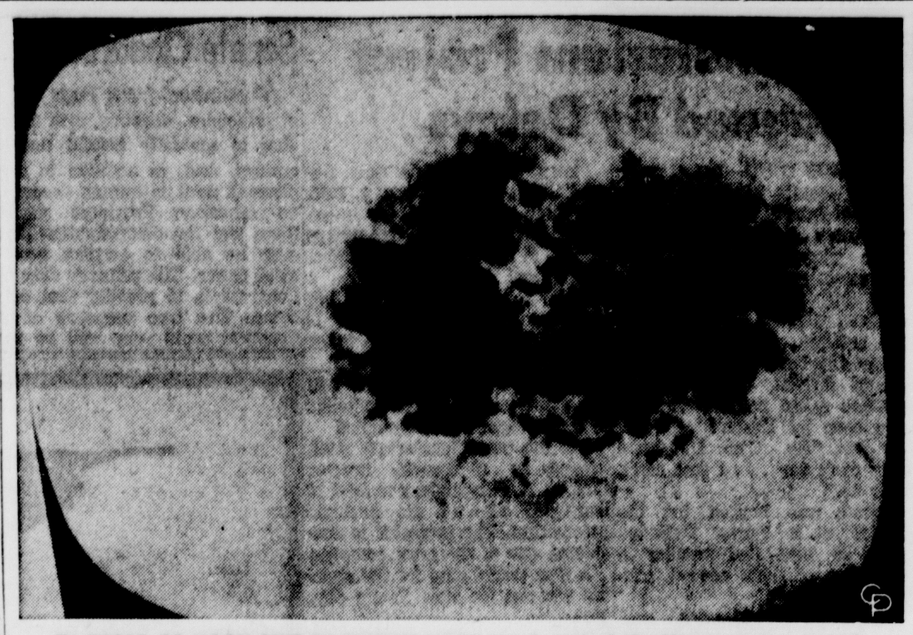

Pew was born in 1886, the year Sun oil was founded by his father. He and his brother, J. Howard, ran the company since the death of their father in 1912.

Builds New Mill

PITTSBURGH—Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp. said it will build a new cold reducing mill for its stainless steel sheet and strip division in Louisville, Ohio. The mill is expected to cost about $1.5 million, industry sources aid. It will increase the plant's stainless sheet and strip output by one-third.

Third Major Playwright Has Flop This Season

Lillian Hellman became the third major American playwright to come up this season with something the public wouldn't buy when her "My Mother, My Father and Me" was presented at the Plymouth Theater.

Tennessee Williams and William Inge were similarly rebuffed with their respective "The Milk Train Doesn't Stop Here Any More" and "Natural Affection."

Not that this proves anything; all three have had flops in the past. But when they all fail in a period of less than three months, this has a dampening effect on theater folk and a season.

Miss Hellman's play was something of a departure for her, inasmuch as it tended toward comedy and her reputation has been made in solid drama.

However, the new work was not exactly on the light side, although it did have an almost burlesque flavor in writing and performance—which, by the way, did it no good and represented bad judgment on the part of someone.

Miss Hellman was concerned with a caustic examination of all that is wrong with current middle-class life as represented by a mixed-up New York Jewish family. The only likeable character was an elderly woman holding fast to the precepts of the old days. Greed, selfishness, lack of direction, racial conflicts, moral irresponsibility—these and other items were Miss Hellman's targets.

Ruth Gordon and Walter Matthau were able heads of a large and talented cast. The play tried to cover too much ground through too many characters who had no stature, not even as villains.

Harm To Economy

PHILADELPHIA — Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn) told a press conference that Wheeling Steel Corp's action in raising prices would "harm" the whole economy if price hikes were to become general throughout the industry. Kefauver said that while the steel companies haven't been making satisfactory profits, "profits have been substantial." He suggested that the steel industry cut prices and boost production rather than raise prices.

Korean Junta Offers Compromise

SEOUL (UPI) — The military junta took steps to Wednesday implement strongman Gen. Park Chung Hee's "compromise" plan to end the power struggle in South Korea even though political opponents have balked at its terms.

The junta ordered a halt in preparations for the referendum called by Park on the question of a four-year extension of military rule and moved to strengthen the administrative power of the cabinet.

In the future, according to the resolution adopted by the standing committee of the junta, no individual members can give direct orders to the cabinet. Such practice was common previously.

Help Urged For Libraries

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The librarian of Congress told his clients Wednesday that the time has come for them to keep up the good work started by Andrew Carnegie.

L. Quincy Mumford, head of the Library of Congress, appeared before a House Education subcommittee to urge congressmen to support President Kennedy's request for more funds for both city and rural public libraries all over the country.

Referring to the large sums provided years ago by the late steel magnate for the establishment of community libraries, Mumford said "nobody is more grateful to Andrew Carnegie than are librarians, but the libraries that his fortune financed are for the most part outmoded and outgrown."

Director Joseph C. Butner of the Pre-Release Guidance Center interviews three young Chicago men who have been granted paroles from federal reformatories. The center operates as a halfway house for youths who are about to return to home communities from federal prison.

Center Tries To Assist Men Who Broke Law

CHICAGO (AP) — Late on a hot night last August, a drunken youth reeled out of a cheap South Side bar and lurched several blocks to a YMCA hotel.

The youth, an 18-year-old baker's apprentice, rode an elevator to the 15th floor. He stumbled into an office at the end of the corridor, slid open a window and threatened to jump.

The baker's apprentice didn't end his life. But he was a casualty—at least in terms of the Pre-Release Guidance Center.

The center, a score of rooms on the 15th floor of the YMCA, takes youths scheduled for parole in three to four months from federal prison.

Center staffers try to ease the transition from prison life to normal community life for young ex-convicts. A casualty, like the baker's apprentice, is a youth who breaks center rules and must be returned to prison.

"The 18-year-old was the center's most serious case," said Joseph C. Butner. Butner, 41, is director of the center and a clinical psychologist. He has a staff of eight.

The center was started, Butner said, "because there was an increase in the number of parole violations in youths released from federal institutions and reformatories."

The center, one of four in the United States run by the Federal Bureau of Prisons, is an experiment. Most youthful offenders are released and no guidance in a world they consider hostile.

Butner and his counselors aim at getting the youths jobs, freeing them from old—possibly underworld—associations and encouraging them to make new and law-abiding friends.

"We wanted to see if something could be done to help young releasees back on the road to normal jobs and schooling as respect members of their communities—not as ex-convicts," Butner said. "We're trying to give them stability."

Butner's estimate of the center's success thus far: "I think we're going right. There are about 40 per cent repeaters in the federal penal system. Here we've had seven casualties in processing 102 boys. After their release, our rate is 6 to 8 per cent repeaters."

Centers were set up in September 1961 in Chicago and New York. A Los Angeles center got under way in October 1961. A Detroit center was begun in January.

The Chicago center maintains an inmate population of 20, all natives of Chicago and communities within a 40-mile radius. It handles youths 18 to 25 years old who have been committed to federal institutions from that area.

Larry, 23, is one of the youths. Larry stole a car in his hometown, Elgin, in 1961. He was arrested in Albuquerque, N. M., and sent to federal prison. He came to the center several months ago.

"Yes, I've thought about running away," Larry said. "When I get that feeling, I just think what good would it do. It'd be a step backward. I try to be good here."

Larry is dark-haired, wiry and intense. A counselor has found him a job in a plastics plant as a machine operator. "When I leave the center, I'll go back to Elgin and pick up my life," he said.

Butner said the center doesn't select residents; it accepts all youths sent to federal institutions from the Chicago area, about 75 each year. "That's about what the center can handle," he said.

The center has 18 single rooms, a double room and a small office. Center youths, with a few restrictions such as a sign-in sign-out sheet, come and go as other YMCA residents do. The center is not separated from other rooms on the 15th floor.

Notable successes so far, Butner said, include two inmates who have gone on to college and two taking high school courses.

"We encourage the boys to be individuals, not stay together outside the center. We want them to get away from old associations," Butner said. "We encourage the use of YMCA facilities, such as movies, dances and athletics."

Pocket money is provided the youths when they arrive at the center. "When our counselor finds the boys jobs and they begin getting a paycheck, we drop away and they begin to pay for their own needs," Butner said.

"After about two months, they pay for all their needs except medical care and rent. And we make them save money each week."

Among the center casualties, Butner said, "One developed into a burglar and was arrested. Several have run away. One was picked up in Las Vegas, one in Tennessee. We tell them they can go. But they know the consequences."

The consequences range from restriction to the hotel for minor rules infractions to jail and transfer to a federal marshal for reconsideration of parole.

At the center car ownership is taboo and there is an 11 p. m. curfew and bed check. Also the youths' rooms are checked when they are at work. Butner said several knives have been confiscated but no inmate has ever tried to keep a gun. Too sexy books and pictures also are forbidden.

"If we can't account for a boy for the period of an hour," Butner said, "the FBI is notified and he is arrested."

And there are more subtle restrictions.

"The biggest headache," Larry said, "is girls. It's hard to explain to them why you have to be back at 11. Mostly I say I gotta get up early or something like that. It's tough on romance."

London Is Sinking

LONDON (AP) — London is steadily sinking. Experts say that it is sliding gently into the sea. Even the subway (here it's called underground) is settling softly into the clay.

St. Paul's Cathedral, that Wren Masterpiece, is slowly settling too. Lord Mottistone, surveyor of the fabric (in charge of its care) is kept informed by a firm of structural engineers which measures the movement.

Parts of the Tower of London are going down and moving away from the Thames.

One corner of the bank of England has gone down seven inches in the last 68 years.

London Bridge of nursery rhyme memory is sinking and tilting as well. Even Big Ben is lopsided. Its tower measures 15 inches to the northwest.

But Londoners are told not to worry. The city sinks only nine inches every 100 years. And the tower of Pisa manages still to stand, though leaning 14 feet.

California Has Many Growth Problems

By PAUL CORCORAN

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — "The wide open spaces of the Old West are gone."

Gov. Edmund G. Brown was talking about California and the other 10 Western States when he said that, but the words had special meaning to Southern California—a giant metropolis that will have some 17 million residents by 1980.

Only an H. G. Wells time machine could turn back the clock to the day you were almost sure of seeing Catalina Island and the desert from a spot in the Santa Monica Mountains, when the desert and citrus groves did not breed subdivisions, and mountain wild life meant animals rather than human settlers.

"Nowhere in the world are the issues of growth and development more sharply defined than in this great and growing urban region."

Brown was talking about Los Angeles when he made those remarks, and even his political rivals in one of the nation's hottest political arenas would seem to agree.

Detractors, including those from more sedate San Francisco, view with some chagrin, a little humor and occasional distaste the way in which the Southern Californian goes about meeting his problem.

That he is trying is evidenced by the fact hardly an hour goes by that a committee doesn't meet somewhere to seek coordination of municipal services, arrange for a new bond issue, or at least form a new committee.

Not all is harmony in the Southern California giant, of course. There was for example a declaration by a Riverside County official during the 1961 Berlin crisis that Los Angeles area residents had better not descend like locusts on his community under threat of armed force. He since has departed.

But the problems for the entire area are similar, and counties are trying to coordinate their efforts to meet the problems of education, transportation and health.

Like the movies that made Hollywood a worldwide symbol, Southern California problems seem grown out of proportion to more conservative sections of the county — something like a movie screen compared to a television screen. The trouble, state and local officials agree, may be the same at the root — it just seems bigger.

Some of those problems that must be faced include:

—The need for at least 6.7 million jobs by 1980, about twice the current labor force.

—A demand for at least 1.6 million new houses and apartments in the Los Angeles-Orange county complex of some 12 million persons.

—A demand for 2.5 million acre feet of water per year to be IMPORTED into Southern California.

—A pressing requirement for mass rapid transit to avoid clogging of such urban giants as Los Angeles, linked with Orange, Riverside and San Bernardino counties.

—A growing demand to avoid overlapping municipal and county functions to take some of the burden off one of the nation's most tax-troubled areas.

The need for more jobs, figures William Opdyk of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, is part of the economic picture that can only be guessed now. "What is important is what the driving forces of growth are, what areas will grow, and what changes will take place."

The growth, for example, of outside areas such as Phoenix, Ariz., 400 miles away, are important to the economics of Southern California. "You can't put a wall around Phoenix and exclude it from considering what will happen in Southern California," Opdyk said.

The Southern California Research Council does anticipate now personal income will reach $60 billion by 1980, almost three times the 1960 figure.

The need for housing may bring a revolution in reverse to Southern California suburban living.

Instead of creeping through a maze of freeway traffic on a 15-25 mile drive home from work, listening eagerly to radio reports based on helicopter traffic surveys, the Southern Californian of tomorrow may live in the city.

The primary reasons for the switch are both convenience and the absence of new, suitable land for homes.

Carleton Block, planning economist for the city of Los Angeles, said the trend already had been reversed in the nation's third largest city. For the past few years, there have been more new apartment units than single dwellings, and Block — looking down from a 22nd floor office on the bustling new Civic Center—sees the rehabilitation of downtown as an index of the need for more space.

Orange, Riverside, Santa Barbara and Ventura counties — all figure be caught up in the population explosion that will continue to spread to the Mexican border. Farming on a large scale presumably will continue the year-around market basket.

Water Still Needed

The reduction of farming in the Los Angeles-Orange county areas won't do away with the demand for more water than can now be drawn from the Colorado River and other sources. But by 1980, the giant State Water Project —built at a cost of almost $2 billion—will provide billions of gallons of water a day that otherwise would flow from Northern California into the sea.

Rapid Transit is a much - discussed dream for Los Angeles. One plan is a giant monorail that will shoot commuters at 70 miles an hour over the freeway routes. Another would provide a backbone subway route that would speed passengers underground—as far as 50 miles.

There are other dilemnas, but Southern Californians figure they can be solved. And maybe they will—if millions of persons continue to figure Southern California may not be so nice to visit, but still is a pretty good place to live.

Broadway Actress Marks Her 25th Anniversary

By JACK GAVER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Uta Hagen, busy since last October as a star in "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?," has just celebrated the 25th anniversary of her career as a Broadway actress.

It was on March 28, 1938, that she made her New York debut as Nina in the revival of Chekov's "The Sea Gull" headed by Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne.

When she auditioned for the job, Lunt told her to come and see him at 11 o'clock.

"I was so eager that I misunderstood what he meant," Miss Hagen recalled. "I was at the theater the next morning promptly at 11, and there wasn't a soul around. He had meant 11 at night."

That was Miss Hagen's second professional acting job. Her first had been as Ophelia in a summer theater production of "Hamlet" directed by Eva Le Gallienne at a Cape Cod playhouse. Just before that she had graduated from the Royal Academy of Dramatic Arts in London.

Miss Hagen was called on for a "command performance" at the White House while in "The Seagull", and President Roosevelt praised her as "one of the greatest young actresses of the stage today."

Some of Miss Hagen's outstanding roles through the years have been Desdemona in "Othello" and Joan of Arc in Bernard Shaw's "Saint Joan." In recent years she has been active in her own acting school.

Grimm took the required instruction under the supervision of Rev. Ernest Teyssier, assistant pastor.

The Boy Scout award requires many hours of work in the church, and in the community on a religious vein.

Grimm, an Explorer Scout, is a member of Explorer Post 13, sponsored by First Presbyterian Church.

In addition to the award, a certificate was presented Grimm from the Board of Christian Education of the United Presbyterian Church of the USA by Rev. Maurice Robertson, pastor.

Southern California Must Solve Many Problems To Cope With Record Population Growth

By PAUL CORCORAN

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Southern California sometimes is regarded as a state of mind between Disneyland and Sunset Boulevard.

It often is ridiculed east—and sometimes west—of the Hudson River and looked on with cautious awe by wide-eyed Europeans and Asians. It is admired openly by peddlers of everything from soap to guaranteed health cures and, occasionally, is praised as a nice place to live.

By 1980—however you look at it bigger than any single state except New York and, of course, California. Seventeen million of the state's anticipated 27 million residents will live in the nine counties which make up what has come to be identified as the Southern California metropolis.

This mixture of movie stars and farm workers, missile engineers and grocery clerks, will need almost 10 million autos and buses and will create a gross regional product estimated at $80 billion by 1980.

The growth will create problems only dreamed of before in an area where there always has been enough space to build an extra room on the 30-year mortgage house, plant a garden or add another garage for the second car. Or a third, for that matter.

This doesn't mean Southern California will evolve into a "1984" type push-button nightmare or that it have the extreme overcrowding problems prevalent in several parts of the world today. But it will present a new face, with more helicopters, cars and planes—and fewer open spaces on the oceanfront, in the foothills or on the desert.

Geographic identification of the Southern California metropolis helps explain why it has an individuality apart from the northern and central sections of the state.

Located south of the Tehachapi Mountains, the region has a mild climate with an average winter temperature of about 45-70 degrees.

The Southern California coastline is some 250 miles long and the northern "boundary"—across the fat belly of California from Morro Bay to Las Vegas—extends some 300 miles. There is a variance in climate within the area—bounded on the south by the Mexico border. The coastal and immediate inland areas are temperate, but the high mountains are often sub-freezing, and the deserts well over 100 degrees. Only a handful of persons—relatively—occupies the land where living conditions are extreme.

As a result, the heaviest concentration of growth has been in three counties—Los Angeles, Orange and San Diego. All have mild climates, excellent port and harbor facilities, low rainfall, almost unlimited flying conditions and proximity to major military bases and defense plants.

Los Angeles, a sleepy Mexican Pueblo little more than a century ago, is the hub. It had 5,992,000 residents within the county limits in 1960, and should grow to 9,365,000 by 1980. Sometime about then, the city of Los Angeles will hit the 4 million mark.

Adjoining Orange County had 682,400 in 1960, but should rocket to 2 million by 1980. San Diego figures to grow to 1,830,000 in 1980 against 1,020,000 in 1960, despite some economic problems.

The men who juggle figures and come up with little more than guesswork, and the analysts who take into consideration all available economic and historic data come pretty close together in predicting what to expect in Southern California in another 18 to 20 years.

The federal and state governments show no inclination to challenge the forecast for Southern California in 1960.

But there are "ifs" to the rosy picture. They include basic assumptions that:

—There will be no great catastrophe during the next 20 years.

—There will be no upheaval in social or political action, nor deep and prolonged depression.

—That Southern California will be able to keep up with community problems such as congestion, transportation, water supply and smog.

—A continued migration to California at a substantial, although not record level. This would be coupled with a high birth rate and a slight further decline in the death rate.

Dr. Robert R. Dockson, Dean of the Graduate School of Business Administration at the University of Southern California, believes Southern California will continue to grow "substantially faster than the rest of the nation."

This rapid growth would include the other Southern California counties—Santa Barbara, Ventura, San Bernardino (the nation's largest in area), Riverside, Imperial and San Luis Obispo.

Los Angeles, as the center of Southern California, is beset by all the problems. The third-largest city of the nation is surrounded and occasionally infiltrated by some 75 other incorporated cities within the county.

Traffic experts figure the city will face its greatest crisis in another two decades unless a mass rapid transit plan is devised to take the load off freeways. "Some day, everyone is going to start to work in their own cars and just find there is no place to move—they'll just stand bumper-to-bumper on the freeway," said one official in a forecast of what might happen without rapid transit.

Los Angeles pushed out from the central city and distributed a mass of subdivisions that covered the surrounding San Fernando and San Gabriel Valleys. Houses were built into and on mountains, some of them sliding off their foundations in heavy rain, or constantly beset by fire danger.

A giant network of elementary and high schools was forced to mushroom for post World War II babies. UCLA and University of Southern California campuses expanded rapidly.

The problems—water, smog, highways, jobs, housing and education—don't seem to have any effect on the march of people to California. And oranges, palms, warm weather and sometimes even "glamour" offered by a different pace of living still lure hundreds of thousands of newcomers a year.

Army Captain Mails Bomb To His Wife

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —The bomb that exploded in the post office at the San Francisco International Airport March 18 was mailed by a U. S. Army Captain in Saigon to his wife, postal officials said Wednesday.

"We assume that the explosion was not accidental, but was designed to cause a blast," said J. H. Van Meter, chief postal inspector.

Van Meter did not identify the Army captain but said he was a quartermaster officer and was being returned to the United States Thursday for psychiatric study.

The explosion injured two postal employes, blew out 12 windows and set fire to a quantity of mail.

Discovery of the identity of the sender followed the painstaking assembly of small bits of paper in which the explosive had been wrapped. Postal officials were finally able to make out the officer's name and two postal inspectors were sent to Saigon to investigate.

Van Meter said that the officer's motives in mailing the bomb to his wife were not known. He said that investigation was continuing to determine the exact nature of the explosive and how it was detonated.

Van Meter said the officer's wife lived in a state other than California, but refused to be more specific.

Fewer Stores Selling More Intoxicants

CHICAGO (UPI) — Production of most alcoholic beverages increased last year but the number of liquor stores in the country declined, Commerce Clearing House said Wednesday.

The tax and business law firm said the number of retail liquor dealers fell to 276,650 from 280,746 in 1961.

U.S. distillers of gin and brewers of beer reported substantial increases in production during the year ended June 30, 1962. Gin output rose over 2.3 million gallons to 20.6 million, while beer firms brewed 96.4 million barrels, up almost 3 million from 1961.

Whiskey makers, on the other hand, produced 2.7 million fewer gallons than in the same 1961 period, dropping to a total of 136 million gallons.

Vodka production rose more than 500,000 gallons to 9.9 million gallons.

Rum output rose 37,000 to 1.74 million gallons.

Wine production shot 2.2 million gallons upward to 168.7 million gallons.

Bank—or Department Store?

It's hard to tell which the picture shows, isn't it? Actually, it shows the lobby of a commercial bank, in which an assortment of wares is exhibited—because they illustrate goals attainable through use of bank services.

Banks often feature displays like this, giving their premises the appearance of department stores. In another way, America's commercial banks are department stores—of financial services. Under a single roof, the customer finds an assortment of useful credit services, and handy facilities for safeguarding possessions, transferring funds, and practicing thrift.

Bargains abound. Cost is low on loans for all sound purposes; safe deposit protection costs pennies weekly; the benefits of a checking account cost little or nothing; the unique advantages of a bank savings account are yours plus interest.

A century seems a short time indeed for commercial banking to have reached the state where it can offer the average American this all-around financial service.

It was just a century ago—in 1863—that President Abraham Lincoln signed the National Currency Act. By creating a national currency, the Act created a key growth catalyst for economic advancement. And by providing for Federally-chartered banks, to join the existing state-chartered banks, it created the "dual banking system" that has so greatly augmented that advancement.

An anniversary marks not only an end but also a beginning. As America's commercial banks look back on their record with pride, they look forward to a new century of progress—through service.

Judge Decides Horse Case

Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris yesterday denied the claim of a local man in a hearing on the ownership of a roan horse which has been boarded at the Cumberland Fair grounds.

The Family Finance Company obtained a judgment against Upton Stokes, city, and then levied on the horse at the fair grounds.

Meanwhile, John Shober claimed that he had purchased the horse from Stokes. Judge Harris ruled that Stokes had been feeding the horse and paying for stall rental and thereby was the legal owner.

Clarence Lippel represented the finance firm while Edward J. Ryan was counsel for Shober.

New Trial Date Set For Mrs. Bennett

Plans for the new trial for Mrs. Garnette May Bennett, local woman convicted last summer of fatally shooting her husband, Moses Bennett, at their home on Willowbrook Road, were completed yesterday.

The trial, ordered by the Maryland Court of Appeals, will be held April 22 and 23 in Circuit Court here before a jury with a three-judge bench presiding.

It was ruled in the appeal case that the three judges in the original case were in error in not advising the jury on all areas of self-defense law at the conclusion of Mrs. Bennett's trial.

Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris said that Associate Judge Stuart Hamill of Garrett County Circuit Court will sit on the case with Associate Judge W. Earle Cobey and himself.

Associate Judge D. Kenneth McLaughlin of Washington County Circuit Court, who had been on the bench for the last trial, informed Judge Harris that he has a full docket for the week of the trial and would be unable to take part.

Attorneys Simon F. Reilly and John C. Sullivan will defend Mrs. Bennett while State's Attorney James S. Getty and Deputy State's Attorney Donald W. Mason will present the state's case.

The shooting occurred January 31, 1962 and the trial was held last April. On May 2, 1962 Mrs. Bennett was sentenced to life imprisonment for shooting her 43-year-old husband.

The Court of Appeals said "the trial court instructed the jury generally as to the law of homicide and the defense thereto . . .

"But . . . it is clear that it did not specifically advise the jury, as it should have done on the evidence in the case, that the defendant had a right to arm herself in anticipation of an assault."

NEW YORK (UPI) — Steel mills produced 10,079,000 tons of steel for castings last month, the highest monthly tonnage figure since the same month a year ago when 10,583,943 tons were produced, the American Iron and Steel Institute reported Wednesday.

The March figure was more than 1.8 million tons higher than the 8,222,352 tons poured in February 1963.

However, steel output for the first three months declined to 26,692,266 tons from 30,635,007 tons during the same period a year ago.

Swan said his office handled only nine general courts-martial last year, while the average for a garrison of this size — 6,500 troops—would be about 25.

Byrd Asked To Inspect Strip Mine Reclamation

FAIRMONT, W. Va. (UPI)—Three soil conservation districts in the Upper Monongahela Valley have invited Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W. Va., to inspect some of the strip-mine reclamation work they are doing.

Secretary C. M. Cunningham of the Tri-Soil Conservation District said the district felt that Byrd should be advised of what has and is being done to revegetate strip soil to alleviate downstream pollution problems.

In a letter to the senator, Cunningham said his organization's attention had been called to Byrd's efforts on behalf of an appropriation to the U. S. Forest Service for reclamation research.

Cunningham told Byrd that more than half of the surface mining in West Virginia is conducted in the 12 counties served by Tri-Soil District.

Last year, Cunningham said, 2,000 acres were planted to the proper species for erosion control. Another 2,000 acres will be planted this year, he added. Since the planting program started in 1955, the district reclaimed more than 10,000 acres.

SRC Will Open Road Projects Bids April 30

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The State Road Commission said Wednesday it will open bids April 30 on an estimated $15 million worth of highway projects. The bid opening includes four Interstate highway projects and is believed to be the largest such opening in the commission's history.

Commissioner Burl Sawyers said the action was "the beginning of the fulfillment of the previously - announced plans of the commission's 1963 construction program."

The Interstate projects include construction of about 7.3 miles of I64 in Cabell County in the Barboursville area; construction of the Wheeling Interchange on I70 in Ohio County, and paving of 3.4 miles of I77 in Wood County north of U. S. 50 to W. Va. 2.

Bids also will be received on six bridge projects, including construction of a bridge on U. S. 250 at Beaver Creek, Barbour County, and construction of three spans on secondary route 119-21 in Lewis County.

Bids also will be opened on demolition of an old bridge at Montgomery, Fayette County. The bridge, which spans the Kanawha River, has been replaced by a new structure. The other bridge project is for repairs to the Upper Gassaway Bridge over the Elk River on W. Va. 4 in Braxton County

Additional projects, all for resurfacing, by county include:

— Lewis: 5.2 miles of U. S. 33 between Hilly Upland Run and the Upshur County line.

— Nicholas: 3 miles of Secondary routes 41-5 and 41-11 between Mt. Nebo and the Summersville Dam road.

— Raleigh: 3.1 miles of W. Va. 54 between W. Va. 16 and Lester.

Prexy Ignores Student Boycott

BUCKHANNON, W. Va. (UPI)—President Stanley Martin of West Virginia Wesleyan College said Wednesday he planned to go ahead with a scheduled personnel change in spite of a boycott of the student union building touched off by "a small group of students."

Martin said the students "are protesting a change in leadership at the student union building" which involves the replacement of Mrs. Dorothy Talbott, Charleston, as program director by Mrs. Clifford Summers, Buckhannon, beginning next Monday.

"It was thoroughly understood by the college and Mrs. Talbott when she was employed last Sept. 1 that her employment was on a temporary basis," Martin said.

However, he added, "many students do not accept or appreciate the fact that Mrs. Talbott's employment was discontinued as per agreement."

He said she was "hired only to organize and implement the initial program."

Scholarship programs. As a consequence, they were released from the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Foundation Community Scholarship Program.

Mr. Dyck reported the PPG Foundation Plant community scholarship is offered competitively to eligible seniors graduating from high schools in Allegany County and to children of employes of PPG's Cumberland plant and other company operations in Cumberland or the county, regardless of the location of the high school they attend.

Mr. Dyck reminded juniors who took the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test in March that they must forward their application blanks to him at the Cumberland plant by May 31 to become eligible for the Foundation's 1964 plant community scholarship program.

Md. High School Grads Will Find Jobs Scarce

BALTIMORE (AP) — Maryland high school graduates will find jobs scare next June, state employment experts said Wednesday.

The Employment Security Department said that the prediction is based on a lack of job openings filed by industry with the State Employment Service. In addition, Maryland is classified as an area of moderate unemployment.

Some 32,000 students will be graduated from high schools in Maryland this June. Of these, about 16,000 are expected to look for permanent jobs.

J. Donn Aiken, director of the employment service of the Employment Security Department, said that scaricity of new jobs would be a problem in every county.

"I urge local businessmen and employers to look over their particular operation and consider where and how a young graduate might fit into their business," Aiken said.

Council Passes Routine Items

The Mayor and Council on Monday transacted considerable routine business. It included:

Acceptance of a report showing parking meter receipts for the week ending March 31 totaled $901.25, up $1.20 over the week before.

Council tabled action on the McKinley Avenue sewer project for another week.

The Mayor and Council approved some 30 licenses, subject in all cases to payment of all taxes due, and in case of junk yards, of prior agreements.

A proclamation declaring April 14 as Pan American Day was passed.

The Sirbarco Corporation received permission to install five underground storage tanks on the site of a service station at the intersection of South Street and the Industrial Boulevard.

Author of the English national anthem was Dr. Henry Carey, who was born in London about 1696.

Ft. Hill Plans May Day Event

The annual May Day pageant will be presented at Fort Hill High School, May 1, 2 and 3, according to Beverly Murray, president of the senior class, which will sponsor the presentations.

Miss Helen Smith, drama advisor, said that Patty Daychak and Judy Giles will be directors.

The pageant will be presented for the public May 1 and 2 and matinees will be held May 1 for junior high students and on May 2 for high school students.

Beverly Brown and Sherri Berry will portray an Oriental girl and boy, respectively. Some 125 students will take part in the pageant which will tell the story of the boy and girl who leave their homeland to search for happiness.

During their travels they encounter a safari, a Hawaiian luau, changing of the guards at Buckingham Palace and a parade.

Secretary Testifies In Influence Case

BALTIMORE (AP) — A secretary for former Maryland Democratic Congressman Thomas F. Johnson testified in U.S. District Court Wednesday that she typed a memorandum on charges against a savings and loan operator which was delivered to the Justice Department.

Mrs. Dora Ferina of Arlington, Va., said she worked in Johnson's Washington office from January to June, 1961, and at Johnson's direction had placed frequent calls to the Justice Department to arrange appointments with the criminal division.

Johnson is being tried with former Democratic congressman Frank W. Boykin of Alabama and savings and loan associates J. Kenneth Edlin and William Robinson, both of Miami, Fla.

They are charged with conspiring to influence the Justice Department in an effort to obtain dismissal of a mail fraud indictment against Edlin. Edlin was sentenced to six months in prison in the mail fraud case. All four have pleaded innocent to conspiracy charges.

Mrs. Ferina said Edlin and Robinson visited Johnson's office frequently. She identified a memorandum discussing the indictment against Edlin and said she had typed it and a letter attached to it, which was dictated by Johnson.

Mrs. Ferina said she also typed some changes to the memorandum at the direction of Johnson and Robinson. The memorandum was sent by special courier to the Attorney General, she said.

T. Lamar Caudle, a former Justice Department attorney, testified Tuesday that he helped to draft the memorandum, whose purpose he said was to enable the Justice Department to review the case against Edlin.

County Library Has Movies Of Canada

Three color films of travel and wildlife in Canada are now available at the Allegany County Public Library, 33 Washington Street, said Mrs. Mary G. Walsh, librarian.

"Away From It All," a 14-minute film, shows Canada's newest national park, Terra Nova, Newfoundland; "Bluefin Rodeo," Soldier's Rip, a happy hunting ground for tuna fishermen; and "Land of The Red Goat," a film excursion into wild, untamed territory of northwest British Columbia, are included in the series available to churches, clubs and other organizations.

Money's Worth In Aid To Taiwan

American taxpayers will be hard pressed to recall an instance of a recipient of foreign aid who voluntarily and amicably closed the doors to further economic dependence upon the United States. But the government of the Republic of China, on Formosa, has reached a mutual agreement with American officials that aid to that country will cease within three years.

Formosa is not phasing out her U.S. aid program because of any friction between Taipei and Washington. Aid to Nationalist China is ceasing because there is no longer need for it.

The island of Formosa has become a showplace of the attainments of free people in an area of the world where such a living example is most needed. The progress of Formosa in the last decade has been little short of miraculous. Its improved standard of living is unknown anywhere else in Asia.

Former tenant farmers and landless workers recently paid off the final installment of a land reform program which has made them land owners. Mechanized farming is no longer unknown in Formosa. The water buffalo, still a common work animal, is being replaced by lightweight power tillers as credit on reasonable terms becomes more readily available to the small farmer. A conscientious rural education plan has succeeded so well that between 1953 and 1961 food production rose 47 per cent, against a population increase of 37 per cent.

Understanding the reasons for Free China's success leads one to the conclusion it was not the aid but the time it bought to inaugurate honest reforms which made the difference.

These Days

By John Chamberlain

Sins Of The Fathers

The campaign for the 1964 Republican Presidential nomination is just beginning to heat up. The "draft Goldwater" boys are pointing to the votes that might be garnered in the South by a conservative G.O.P. man, and they are already gingerly testing their slogan, "Rocky can't win." The New York Conservative Party, now safely on the State ballot, is saying that "Rockefeller is unacceptable." Meanwhile, Nelson Rockefeller, who thinks he can win, has been hitting the western plains states with a conservative prairie backfire. He has his own ideas of acceptability.

In Kansas, they have been advertising Rocky as a boy with local connections. It seems that his Uncle Frank, the youngest brother of the founder of the Standard Oil Company, old John D., was a Kansas rancher. They aren't saying much about the fact that Frank was the maverick Rockefeller who refused to work for Standard Oil. He even refused to drive a car, supposedly because he was boycotting his brother's gasoline.

All of this should be water over the dam; the family quarrels of yesteryear should not be allowed to dog the footsteps of innocent grandchildren. Nevertheless, it is human nature to drag ancestors into things. There is always a fascination about family beginnings. At the moment two books are being readied which will touch considerably on the career of Joseph Kennedy, the President's father. One of them, by Victor Lasky, is already on the desk of the editor of the MacMillan Company, and will surely be coming along one of these days. Another, by Richard Whalen, is in course of being researched.

If and when Nelson Rockefeller gets the Republican nod, you may be sure that the ancient history of old John D.'s Standard Oil Company will be combed over once again for its yield of moralistic pluses and minuses. Luckily for grandson Nelson, a lot of scholarly work has been done on Standard Oil history in recent years that tends to erase the old all-black muckrakers' picture of a terrible monopoly. The Hidys, Ralph and Muriel, have written several books and articles to show that the Standard Oil Company achieved most of its growth from a quite legitimate brand of competition. The worst thing that the original Standard Oil Company ever participated in was a cartel called the South Improvement Company, which in 1872 not only took rebates on oil shipments, but also exacted drawbacks from the railroads on the tariff paid by companies that were outside the "ring."

The muckrakers have made the most of this, but what is never pointed up in their books is that the South Improvement Company had its charter revoked in practically no time flat. Out of the forty years of the Nineteenth Century in which John D. Rockefeller was in the oil business, he got less than one year's advantage out of the South Improvement Company trick.

Recently, in writing about the old contest between J. P. Morgan and Edward Harriman for ownership of the western railroads, I said something about Harriman having the support of the "Rockefeller money" that was kept in the vaults of "Sunny Jim" Stillman's National City Bank. Allan Nevins, the Pulitzer prize winning historian, promptly picked me up on this. True enough, he says, the money behind Harriman was "Rockefeller money." But the Rockefeller money in question was controlled by John D.'s brother William. Professor Nevins, who has been doing a lot of research of his own into Rockefeller history, insists that John D. and brother William seldom saw eye to eye. Being a cautious man, John D. distrusted his brother's "speculations" and would have little to do with them. And Professor Nevins is authority for saying that John D. had little use for banker Stillman. John D., it seems, was not interested in tying up the American economy into one monopolistic bundle, and he never really made a fight of it to keep the Mellons of Pittsburgh (Gulf Oil), the Pews of Philadelphia (Sun Oil), and such western companies as Texaco from taking business away from that supposed all-encompassing ogre, Standard Oil of New Jersey.

All of this should be remembered in 1964 when and if rival mudslingers start to toss around the alleged capitalistic sins of Grandfather John D. Rockefeller and Father Joseph P. Kennedy. The better part of wisdom would be to let the descendants of Old John D. and Old Joe speak for themselves.

JFK Intervenes In House Rules Dispute Over Medical School Bill

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — It isn't often that Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, the No. 1 "Harlem Globetrotter," and Rep. Howard Smith, the Virginia Dixiecrat, are teamed up on the same side. They disagree on almost everything. But ironically, though disagreeing, they were instrumental in blocking the bill to aid medical schools and thereby remedy the doctor shortage.

Their positions illustrate the difficulty President Kenndy is having with his legislative program, and the fact that he has to pull wires on Capitol Hill today as if he were still a member of the Senate.

Chairman Smith had shelved this important bill by a tie vote in the Rules Committee when a liberal supporter of medical college aid, Democrat Ray Madden of Indiana, was ill. When he recovered, however, he began to demand a "reconsideration."

At this point, the conservative Virginian used Adam Clayton Powell's position to block consideration. Powell was part of a Democratic-Republican coalition of the House Education and Labor Committee which argued that the medical bill should have been initially drafted by the Education and Labor Committee, of which Powell is chairman.

Seizing on this jurisdictional dispute, Smith wrote a letter to President Kennedy saying that he didn't want to reconsider the bill, because of the "dispute" between the two committees. However, Kennedy wasn't taken in. He called House Democratic leaders to a "back-door meeting" at the White House for a showdown.

It was all so hush-hush that office aides of some of the leaders didn't even know where they were. However, this column can report that Speaker John McCormack, Majority Leader Carl Albert (Okla.), Whip Hale Boggs (La.), Congressman Powell, Chairman Oren Harris (Ark.) of the interstate Commerce Committee, and others were ushered into the White House side door, unobserved by the press.

Kennedy Intervenes

Kennedy opened the secret meeting by mentioning the letter from Smith and stating that he wanted the jurisdictional row settled.

"This sounds ridiculous to me," he said. "I know that Chairman Smith and some other Southern Democrats are against this legislation, along with most Republicans in the House. But why play into their hands by letting them divide Democrats who are for the bill?"

"Well, I want to stop this discrimination against my committee," spoke up Powell. "It started several years ago when my predecessor, Mr. Barden of North Carolina, was chairman of the Education and Labor Committee. He didn't want to do anything, so some of the bills that normally would have been handled by Barden were assigned to other committees.

"Apparently, the practice hasn't stopped."

"I wholeheartedly agree with Chairman Powell," interposed Rep. Edith Green, (D-Ore.), "The medical school bill should have been handled by our committee and by my subcommittee."

"That may be true," argued Rep. Boggs, "but let's be practical. We can pass this bill if we can get it out of the Rules Committee."

"Yes, you can deal later with this jurisdictional issue, but we shouldn't let it interfere with enactment of the medical school measure, suggested Kennedy. "Let's get together and pass it."

Powell and Mrs. Green finally capitulated.

Soon afterward, the House Rules Committee, with Democrat Madden present and voting, reported the medical bill to the House by an 8-to-7 vote.

Trapped Himself

The Birmingham, Ala., police commissioner who made wholesale arrests of Negroes praying for him and who ordered police dogs out against peaceful Negroes on the streets of Birmingham is the same Eugene "Bull" Connor who was arrested by one of his own police force for illicitly occupying a hotel room with a woman.

In the early 1950's, Connor had helped to put a law on the statute books making it illegal for a couple to occupy a hotel room unless they were married. He was trying to trap a former mayor of Birmingham.

However, he got caught in his own trap and was arrested by one of his own detectives for so occupying a hotel room. Conviction followed.

Labor Leader Praises JFK

Harold Wilson, leader of the British Labor Party and the man who may be next Prime Minister of England, returned to London the other day singing the praises of President Kennedy.

Wilson told friends that he and Kennedy communicated "on the same wave-length"; that they covered more in one hour than most men could cover in three.

Wilson reported to friends that he and Kennedy had had some policy disagreements, but that it was a good thing to know just where they stood. The differences included:

1.—Wilson believes there should be a denuclearized zone in Central Europe, as proposed by Foreign Minister Rapacki of Poland. The U. S. has been opposed. Wilson thought this zone should be extended to Asia, Africa, and South America.

2.—Wilson flatly opposed letting the German Army get even one little finger on the nuclear trigger. Kennedy appeared to share this general view, though not so vigorously.

3.—The two also disagreed about East-West trade, which Britain favors. The United States has tried to persuade its allies to refuse all trade with Communist nations.

4.—The recognition of Red China.

Despite disagreements, Wilson remarked to friends that JFK had made no attempt to convert him and that the conversation was an intellectual challenge.

The British Adjustment To The New Europe

By Joseph Alsop

LONDON

One can learn a good deal about the present state of Britain from the British government's schizophrenic attitude to the decisions taken at Nassau by President Kennedy and Prime Minister Macmillan.

As may be recalled, the President and the Prime Minister jointly announced their support for a multilateral European deterrent armed with Polaris missiles, which were to be emplaced on ships internationally manned under an international command within NATO.

At the same time, the President also undertook to provide Polaris missiles for a national, submarine-borne British deterrent. But the Prime Minister agreed to place this British national deterrent under the international command of the multilateral deterrent, except in cases of national emergency not involving NATO.

Here then, was a complex contraption. The multilateral force was to be something like a foreign legion, but with both officer corps and troops internationally recruited from the participating NATO allies. And the high command of this novel sort of nuclear striking force was also, in normal circumstances, to control Britain's purely national nuclear force.

No British governmental schizophrenia has been provoked by the Anglo-American Polaris bargain. But the attitude towards the other half of the Nassau package, the internationally-manned multilateral nuclear force, is schizophrenic in a marked degree.

Prime Minister Macmillan, his Foreign Secretary, Lord Home, Minister of Defense Peter Thorneycroft, and the Minister of State for Foreign Affairs, Edward Heath, have all backed the plan for a multilateral nuclear force in NATO, albeit without much enthusiasm on some occasions.

On the other hand, although they have refrained from any public attack, the Minister of War, John Profumo, the Air Minister, Hugh Frazier, and the uniformed chiefs of the British armed services have made no secret of the fact that the very idea of the multilateral force gives them gooseflesh. The international, "mixed" manning is what they object to.

This sort of open divergence of view is a new thing in British governments. It is all the more significant when you consider the meaning of the opposition to the internationally manned multilateral force.

The multilateral nuclear deterrent within NATO, if it is finally organized, will first of all constitute the germ or embryo of a truly European deterrent. To all intents and purposes, it will really be a European deterrent if the President accepts the German proposal for eventual control of the force by a majority vote of the contributing members; for the U. S. veto will then be eliminated.

Secondly, no such European or NATO deterrent can possibly be organized without the mixed, international manning which is so disliked here. On the one hand, the Germans must obviously be permitted to participate in any such force.

On the other hand, the only alternative to international manning is national manning — and this would mean a German nuclear force with as much potential independence as the British force. The device of international manning was in truth adopted to permit German participation while avoiding the creation of a German national nuclear force.

The strong British disinclination revealed by the government's schizophrenia is therefore much more significant than it appears at first glance. The opponents of the multilateral force say that it cannot work because of the inherent difficulties of mixed manning. But they mean that they do not want even the germ of a European deterrent, and especially a European deterrent with German participation.

The British adjustment to the transformation of Europe is in fact even more difficult than the American adjustment. Yet the adjustment is going to have to be made, boldly, decisively, and rapidly, unless the British and American governments want Europe to turn away from them both in the end.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

KID GLOVE HANDLING — Charles de Gaulle is much on the mind of Washington officialdom these days because of the French leader's efforts to create a "third force" in Europe independent of United States domination. Le Grande Charles' veto of British entry into the "Common Market" was a serious blow to American efforts to create a better climate for its exports—which is sorely needed in order to ease the outflow of gold.

Currently, Washington strategy is two-fold—first, to make no overt move that de Gaulle could point to as corroboration of his fears that Wetsern Europe will become further dominated by the U. S.; second, to try to convince de Gaulle that U. S. policy is not to dominate Europe, but rather to help European nations forge a political and economic system that will be able to stand on its own feet, militarily as well as in a business way.

At the same time, Washington suspicions that de Gaulle is using the accusation against the U. S. as a smokescreen for his real intentions, which are to preserve and enhance the favorable industrial and agricultural position France finds herself in in relation to her common market partners.

France is prospering under the impetus of common market policies which have provided an enlarged market for her products, shielded by high tariff walls that keep out products of competing countries, including the U. S. and Canada.

Because of de Gaulle's stand, travelers returning to Washington from Europe are quoting a quatrain that is being circulated among common market countries. It runs like this:

"Old King Gaulle was a clever old soul
And up to a number of tricks.
But despite what they say at the Quai d'Orsay
He could only count up to six."

Strolling American

By John Crosby

PARIS.

Harry Kurnitz is a five-year man. You can tell he's lived in Paris that long by the pace. Slow, very slow. Paris is a stroller's town. But it takes a while — sometimes years for an American to learn how to stroll as slowly as Harry. Takes not only years of living here but great natural gifts.

I am consumed with admiration at the stately way Harry gets from here to there. You watch him breasting his way through a Paris street and it's a little like watching a schooner on the horizon. You measure the ship's progress by lining up the mast with some nearby object. Twenty minutes later you line up the ship again and find it's progressed past the fixed point from foremast to mizzen. Same way with Harry.

The best place to observe Harry strolling is from across the street, seated in a sidewalk cafe. (Better get yourself comfortable because this is going to take time.) Now, you catch sight of Harry and line up his lean hawklike profile with a shop window. Then go back to your paper. Twenty minutes later, look again. You'll find he's moved. Not much. But there's been discernible movement. Astronomers, I'm told, measure the movement of stars by photographing them weeks or perhaps years later on the same plate from the same position. I must try that with Harry.

He stops to stare into a butcher's window. (It takes, I should interject here, considerable practice to tell the difference between Harry stopping and Harry moving.) He stares fixedly into the butcher shop's window. Minutes pass. What in hell is he looking at in a butcher's window?

I ask him: "Harry, how in hell can you spend ten minutes staring into a butcher's window? What are you doing?"

"Comparing prices. They're getting more for shoulder of veal in this butcher shop than they are down the street." Then, noticing by blank look, he adds: "You've got to fill up the day somehow. If you go rushing through it, you're done for."

It takes years of living here to reach this state of equilibrium. Not to go rushing at things. Stare at a piece of meat with the respect and deliberation it deserves. Not with any idea of buying it. No practical considerations at all. Just evaluate it. Examine its texture. Look for the imperfections. Is it overpriced? Underpriced? Take your time. Don't want to reach any hasty decisions. Then proceed to the next piece of meat. Gaze. Evaluate. Weigh. Compare.

Kurnitz figures that Paris has added years to his life, slowing his pace. Besides strolling, he's very gifted at sitting and staring. If I'm consumed with admiration for the way that man strolls, I'm stupefied with astonishment at the way he sits. "The other day," he told me, "I took my newspaper to a sidewalk cafe. I was there two-and-a-half hours, never even opened the paper."

Good heavens! I'm a 20-minute man myself over a cup of coffee in a sidewalk cafe. Even then, the last five minutes are a struggle. I have that horrible feeling that something, somewhere, is being left undone and I should rush off and do it. You have to fight these feeling down. Takes years.

Delight in sitting still, doing exactly nothing, except breathing, takes serenity of spirit. God knows where that comes from, but my theory — flying in the face of clergymen and psychiatrists — is that it depends on the barometer. I'm very barometric. My feelings plunge with the barometer and rise with it too. (There's been talk of harnessing my moods to predict thunderstorms. I'd be much cheaper to maintain than those B-17s flying through hurricanes, too, and no less accurate.)

Cafe-sitting is essentially people-watching, rather than thing-watching. When looking at things (like shoulders of veal) you have to provide your own locomotion, however slow. But people-watching is easier because they provide their own locomotion and you just sit still, appreciating them. In fact, I'm sitting here in a cafe writing this, breathing slowly, appreciating.

Speaking of locomotion, look at the play of that girl's hips. Sort of a one-two-three beat there. Up, down, sidewards. If I were a mathematician, I could evolve a whole theorem of motion — sy minus P equals forward motion squared — something like that.

Fortunately, I'm not at all mathematically inclined. Otherwise I'd go flying after that thought, furiously calculating. And we can't have that. Got to slow the thought down, as well as the pace. Fortunately, the girl's gone, she and her distracting hips.

I fall to contemplating something quieter — the texture of that old man's brow with its wild whorl of wrinkles. Must have taken a heap of living to get a mess of wrinkles in that particular pattern of convolutions . . .

Viral, Chemical Origins Of Cancer Studied

By Theodore R. Van Dellen

Emotional conflicts can disrupt life more completely than can many organic diseases. What are the most frequent causes of anxiety, frustratiton, and other forms of nervousness? A little insight along this line goes a long way in the prevention and understanding of these psychiatric problems.

Most of the origins of psychic upsets center about daily living. The individual often knows what is bothering him but he won't recognize it or he overcompensates for his problem.

When we marry, we promise to love and honor but a good many spouses don't like each other after a year or two of marital bliss. But they stick together for various reasons. A man may be in constant torture when at home with his wife yet tells everyone how he adores her and how talented she is. This is overcompensation and, under hypnosis or the truth serum, he will admit it. But the majority bear their fate with resignation or develop symptoms of tension.

Three is a crowd is another factor. Many of the men and women who are involved in a love triangle suffer from feelings of guilt. Sexual frustration is another cause of tension, provided it bothers the individual. Sex has been emphasized beyond reason by our entertainment media, so that many people become unhappy about their humdrum lot.

Financial problems are a well known source of mental unrest because of the tendency to keep up with the Joneses. Children can be devastating to peace of mind when they rule the roost. Many parents hesitate to exert their authority and become disturbed when they must discipline their youngsters.

Family dominance by the husband may upset the wife and vice versa. This includes the little whining woman who is full of hostility and the wife beater who rules by sheer force. Business dominance also is a factor, particularly when the man dislikes his work or his boss. But he cannot quit because he is hogtied by company benefits or fears that he cannot get another job.

Overdependence on others also can be frustrating, especially in people who don't like to make decisions for themselves. Religion usually is a source of help but not when the person becomes a fanatic in an attempt to cover up his fears. This makes him a nuisance to himself and everyone else.

TENDER SCALP

J. B. writes: What causes pain on lifting the hair to comb it?

REPLY

This occurs when the scalp is irritated as a result of uncleanliness, strong shampoos, or mild inflammation.

SOLE WART

E. C. writes: How can plantar warts be treated so they will not recur?

REPLY

Many disappear after removal via surgery, cautery, or radium. Others require more extensive surgery, at which time the metatarsal bone is removed and the warty area is replaced with a skin graft. The latest remedy is to soak the foot in very hot water for ½ to 1½ hours twice a week.

HYSTERICAL BLINDNESS

J. K. writes: A year ago my 81-year-old mother lost her eyesight. The doctor calls it psychic blindness. Is there any treatment for this condition?

REPLY

Anything psychic is in the sphere of the psychiatrist. This type of blindness at 81 years of age is most unusual unless your mother had a stroke or has signs of mental deterioration. I would suggest you get another opinion from an eye specialist.

HOW MANY PILLOWS?

Mrs. T. writes: When my doctor was examining me, he asked whether I slept on one pillow or two. Why did he want to know?

REPLY

Because individuals with certain types of heart disease sleep better if they use two or more pillows. Had you answered "yes" the physician would then have asked, "why?" In this way he would have obtained information that is helpful in making the diagnosis.

RESENTS ILLNESS

W. V. writes: Is psychotherapy part of the treatment of diabetes?

REPLY

Yes, in individuals who resent having to adhere to a diet, insulin, or pill taking. They cannot seem to adjust to the situation of living with a chronic disease.

TOMORROW: Knife-like facial pains.

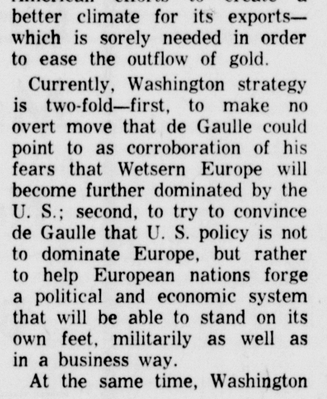

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of diseases will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

A backwoods circuit rider in Kentucky had one vanity: a spirited, superb horse on which he made all his rounds. One morning a follower asked him jovially, "Parson, no offense, but how come your horse's coat always looks so much better than yours?"

"That's an easy one," shot back the circuit rider. "You see, I take care of my horse; my congregation takes care of me!"

Three short shorts from Minneapolis' jokester laureate, Mox Lindquist:

1. "This coffee," a waitress explained to a customer born in Sweden, "comes here from a place even further away than Sweden. It is imported from Brazil." "What do you know?" marveled the Swede. "It's still varm!"

2. A very stout lady at a seaside resort noticed a weighing machine with a sign attached proclaiming, "I speak your weight." She put a nickel in the slot and stepped on to the platform. Sure enough, a voice spoke up: "One at a time, please!"

3. Mr. and Mrs. Victor Borge met Sonja Heine, the retired skating queen, at a party recently. "My!" whispered Mrs. Borge. "Doesn't she look young?" "Why not?" countered Victor. "She's been on ice most of her life."

Stocks Edge Lower After Early Morning Advance

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market edged lower Wednesday after a sudden afternoon tumble erased a solid morning advance based on a steel price increase by the nation's eleventh largest producer.

Activity quickened to nearly the fastest of the year.

Steel stocks resisted and finished fractionally higher. They had been up 1 to 2 points in early trading. The market acted jittery awaiting the outcome of the latest steel price situation.

The turnaround came when President Kennedy decided to stay in Washington until Thursday morning instead of leaving Wednesday for a Florida vacation. His move obviously was based on the possibility of a spread in the steel price boost.

No other company followed Wheeling Steel's lead before the market closed.

Volume expanded to 5.91 million shares for the fifth consecutive 5-million-day. It compared to 5.11 million Tuesday and Monday's 1963 high of 5.99 million.

Steels were about the only major section to show a majority of plus signs. Aircrafts, electronics, airlines and drugs declined while mail orders, chemicals, rails, oils and tobaccos closed in the mixed column.

Autos showed some of the biggest losers. Ford was off 1 after declaring the regular dividend naming a new president. GM fell 1⅝ and Chrysler was off ⅝.

U.S. Steel was the most active, gaining ⅜ at 48⅜ on 200,200 shares. Bethlehem, second largest producer, was third most active with a similar ⅜ gain at 32. Wheeling closed with a gain of 1⅜.

The Dow Jones industrial average fell 1.68 at 704.35. The Associated Press 60-stock average was off .3 at 264.4 with industrials down .7, rails up .2 at a 1963 high of 133.7, and utilities off .2.

Of 1,327 issues traded 659 declined and 406 advanced. There were 123 highs for 1963 and 20 new lows.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange closed irregularly lower.

Jet Airliner Sets Record; 73 Aboard

WASHINGTON (AP)—An American Airlines jet carrying 73 persons flew from Los Angeles to Dulles International Airport near here in 3 hours, 27 minutes, 23 seconds Tuesday.

The airline said this was a record for the 2,286-mile distance, besting the former mark, also set by American, of 3 hours and 29 minutes.

Capt. O. J. Feroe was pilot of the Boeing 707-123 jet, flight No. 76. Also aboard were 65 passengers and seven other crew members.

Most of the flight was at 33,000 feet. The average ground speed was 725 miles an hour.

In World War I, the name zero hour was given to the time set for a predetermined attack. Later it was changed to H-hour.

Mary, queen of Scots, was executed in 1587 because she was a threat to the throne of England.

Chicago Grains

CHICAGO (UPI)—Most wheat futures firmed, but late selling caused other grains to finish mostly lower Wednesday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Wheat closed unchanged to up ⅞, corn off ⅛ to ¾, oats off ⅛ to ⅝, rye off 1 to up ¼, soybeans off ⅜ to up ⅛.

Prices ruled unevenly through most of the session. Much of the early trading was based speculation about a government report of stocks on farms due after the close.

Soybeans firmed briefly on belief the report on farm stocks would fall below the 164.5 million bushels of a year ago. Later selling erased the advance.

May wheat rebounded 2 cents from an opening decline brought on by local and long selling, but the delivery closed steady due to late selling. The brief rally reflected commercial house demand following reports that Chile and Yugoslavia together bought more than 4 million bushels of hard wheat.

Poor crop reports from the Southwest winter wheat belt caused buying of new crop wheat. Spot prices were firm.

Corn prices eased on hedge selling. The Commodity Credit Corp. sold 1,300,500 bushels of corn Tuesday to domestic users. The agency also sold 1,175,000 bushels of hard wheat.

Oats had little feature. The rye market trended lower on talk that West Germany will seek rye in the world market rather than only from North America as had been hoped.

Reports of further processor shutdowns attracted buying to soybean meal. Oil futures were slightly lower, with commercial houses on both sides of the market.

Outside markets were uneven. Wheat futures advanced at Kansas City and Minneapolis, while most Winnipeg grains worked lower.

CENTENNIAL SCRAPBOOK

The War for the Union 1861-65 in Pictures

No. 262 The Emancipation Proclamation and the Homestead Act were not the only epochal developments early in 1863. Ground was broken at Sacramento, Calif., for the Central Pacific R. R., the assertive rival of the Union Pacific R. R. under the Act of Congress in 1862 providing subsidies for railway construction between the Missouri River and the Pacific Coast.

The two were to race in track-laying, with Central Pacific contractors working eastward and Union Pacific builders working westward, until the two systems were linked up at Promontory Point, Utah. When that happened, the nation became firmly welded together geographically, commercially, socially. Persons and goods could be transported from Atlantic to Pacific in less than 10 days and any time of the year.

Congress had been petitioned as early as 1845 to foster a transcontinental railway. The project lagged until the war dramatized the strategic and tactical importance of railways. Californians and Oregonians who volunteered for the Union Army were months in reaching the East.

One reason for congressional delay in action on the railway project was a dispute between Northern and Southern senators over whether it should have a northern or southern route. (It was believed in those days that only one transcontinental railway would ever be built.) The war determined that the original route would be through northern territory.

An action by Congress early in 1863 also settled one other detail. The act declared the Union Pacific line should have a track gauge, or separation between the rails, of 4 feet 8½ inches. The effect was to establish it as the standard gauge nationally.

McIntyre Firm Gets $386 Award

McIntyre Chevrolet Inc., 219 North Mechanic Street, was awarded $386.35 in damages Tuesday by Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris in Allegany County Circuit Court in a three-way legal action.

The McIntyre firm brought suit against George Bernard Keller, Midland. This declaration stated that Shirley Ann Rounds of Barton was driving an automobile owned by the plaintiff while her own car was being repaired by the plaintiff.

She was driving south on State Route 55 just south of Vale Summit about 10:30 p.m. March 11, 1962, when the car became stuck in a snow bank.

Keller's car crashed into the right side of the plaintiff's vehicle and damaged it to the extent of $386.35.

Judge Harris awarded McIntyre Chevrolet $386.35 against Keller but not the woman driver.

Three attorneys were involved in yesterday's action. James Alfred Avirett represented McIntyre. Hugh A. McMullen was attorney for Keller and Fred H. Anderson represented the Barton woman.

Beall, Brewster Back Wilderness Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—Here is the way Maryland, Delaware and West Virginia senators voted Tuesday in the 73-12 roll call vote by which the senate passed a bill to establish a national wilderness preservation system.

Democrats voting for were Brewster of Maryland and Byrd and Randolph of West Virginia.

Principals Discuss Evaluation

"Testing, Grading and Promoting in the High School" was the discussion topic for the monthly meeting Tuesday afternoon of the Allegany County high school principals, according to Assistant Superintendent of Schools Richard T. Rizer.

Jack A. Petry, high school supervisor, was chairman of the meeting. He showed an orientation film entitled "Willie and the Mouse" which illustrated the fact that a study of animal psychology that learning differs for different individuals. Some learn through sight and hearing while others must learn through practical experience.

Oberlin T. Chaney, principal of Cresaptown Junior High School, served as discussion leader.

Mr. Rizer said that the group agreed in general that evaluation is not an end in itself, but, rather a procedure to determine the effectiveness of educational efforts. Such evaluation can never be entirely objective as applied in "quality control" in industry.

The subjective factors relating to the pupil being evaluated are most important. The important question that must always be considered is "What effect will this decision have on the pupil?"

Other principals at yesterday's session included Dr. W. Ardell Haines, Allegany High School; Earl F. Brain, Beall Elementary School; Joseph H. Pellerzi, Beall High School; James H. White, Flintstone High School; Dr. Wayne W. Hill, Fort Hill High School; Kendrick Y. Hodgdon, Mt. Savage High School; John R. McVicker, Oldtown High School; Miss Lula M. Blonskey, Pennsylvania Avenue School, and Paul D. Beable, Valley High School.

Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster was a participant along with various supervisors. They included LaVern J. Hahn, supervisor of music education; J. D. Lonnholm, supervisor of vocational, industrial and adult education; Theodore P. Foote, supervisor of art education; Miss Ruth C. McColly, supervisor of home economics education; Miss Esther M. Carter, Glenn U. Hanna and Eugene J. Hopkins, visiting teachers.

Celanese Gets Order From Korea

Congressmen Carlton R. Sickles (D) and Charles Mathias Jr. (R) yesterday announced that the Celanese Fibers Company plant here has received an order for $56,484 worth of acetate yarn, to be sold to various firms in South Korea.

The yarn was sold under the foreign aid program of the Agency for International Development under supply contracts awarded to a New York export office by various firms in South Korea, the congressmen said.

Shipments are identified by a distinctive color emblem to inform the people of the foreign country that the goods are provided through the AID program.

Sickles and Mathias noted that the order came as a result of the "Buy American" policies of the U. S. foreign aid program.

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

CENTENNIAL SCRAPBOOK

The War for the Union 1861-65 in Pictures

No. 263 In January 1863, Grant and Sherman were pushing the campaign against the Confederate stronghold at Vicksburg. Hooker was reorganizing the Army of the Potomac after the disastrous leadership of Burnside. The Lincoln administration was rebuffing the offer of Napoleon III of France to mediate between the Union and Confederate governments. The Emancipation Proclamation was being hailed and attacked. A Western land settlement boom was beginning under the new Homstead Act. But prime attention was being given by many persons to stories in the press about the approaching nuptials of a pair of midgets.

P. T. Barnum, who had been exhibiting a miniature 25-year-old native of Bridgeport, Conn., named Charles Stratton, as "Gen. Tom Thumb," was engineering the stories.

Stratton and Lavinia Warren, one of a pair of midget sisters Barnum added to his gallery of freaks in 1862, had decided to get married. Barnum wanted to stage the ceremony in the Academy of Music and charge admission, but the couple insisted on a more dignified ceremony and it was held in Grace Church in February. But a mob struggled for seats there, and there was another crush, in which many notables joined, at the wedding reception Barnum arranged at the Metropolitan Hotel.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD—Most actors who did what Gardner McKay did,—take a powder and go off vagabonding for eight months—would find his career seriously on the skids. Not Gardner. Now in Paris, he's just been voted the most popular TV actor in the world for his "Adventures in Paradise" series playing there.

What's more he's hitting the gossip columns in a big way with his name linked with Soraya, former princess turned movie actress.

So happy is life for Gardner in France that he's staying on to star for French producer Jean Benazaroff in a picture said to be based on the life of photographer Dick Avedon, temporarily titled "Cover Girl" (will have to be changed. Rita Hayworth did that).

I suppose there's a lesson in Gardner about how to succeed by doing as you please—but I don't know what it is.

With nothing but nerve on his part, comedian Marty Ingles two years ago crashed the Paramount lot dressed as a soda fountain attendant. He carried a half dozen cups of coffee and wound up in Jerry Lewis's office, where Jerry, impressed by Marty's audacity, and intrigued by his personality, gave him a screen test and signed him for a role in "Ladies Man."

From that point on, it was Ingles' talent that has slowly put him in the forefront of today's young comedians. For the past season, he has been co-starring in ABC-TV's comedy series "I'm Dickens, He's Fenster." And now Marty has been signed for a "Monsieur Cognac" and after he finishes this, he goes to 20th for a part in "Move Over, Darling," formerly called "Something's Got to Give".

That former Mousketeer, annette Funicello, has been loaned to American-International's upcoming teen-age musical comedy "Beach Party." This is her first film away from Walt Disney. The announcement came from James H. Nicholson and Samuel Z. Arkoff, heads of American-International.

Those fine old Roman charioteers from "Ben-Hur," —who else but Charlton Heston and Stephen Boyd?—are being sought by director Anthony Mann to be reteamed in his $7,000,000 spectacle, "The Unknown Battle."

A week or so ago I told you about this picture based on the top secret exedition of the allied forces to knock out a Nazi atom bomb base in Norway during World War II.

Tony Mann is having plenty of time to talk to Steve Boyd about this project because Steve is currently one of his stars in "Fall of the Roman Empire."

What a surprise is the admission from Stewart Granger in London that he has given up his American citizenship.

"I gave up my American citizenship last year, very quietly," Stewart told a columnist.

But he is holding on to his 10,000 acre ranch in Arizona, even to pouring more money into it, because he feels it is wonderful security for his children, by his marriage to Jean Simmons and a previous marriage.

shifted to 8:30 (EST) on Tuesday nights," he said. "A much better hour for us."

Inasmuch as Jones doesn't live like a star the question naturally arises as to what he does with his money. Answer: "I put it in the bank and I buy stocks. There may come a time when I will be able to splurge on a nice big home, but I'm trying to keep my balance and my outlook on life in proper perspective.

"Sometimes it's not an easy thing to do."

Dean (Ensign O'Toole) Jones Doesn't Live Like Most TV Celebrities

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Dean Jones, star of the "Ensign O'Toole" series, is the head of one Jones family that no one need be concerned about keeping up with.

When it comes to off-screen glamour and high living he is a bust.

There are plumbers and insurance adjusters who live on grander scales than the handsome young star.

Unlike many a status-seeking performer, Jones lives in an unfashionable suburb of Los Angeles in a three-bedroom stucco house without a swimming pool. His neighbors are everyday, hard-working middle class citizens. And that's the way Jones likes it.

But it does shake you up to think that here is a man who can afford to reside in Bel-Air or Beverly Hills, yet lives in a home that cost considerably less than $50,000—less than some stars in similar financial circumstances pay for servants in a year's time.

A comfortable, seemingly uncomplicated guy, Jones leads as normal a private life as you and I.

He and his wife, Mae, were married in 1954 and are the parents of two daughters, Carol Elizabeth, 7, and Deanna Mae, 5, who enchant and dominate their father.

"When I come home at night I lie flat on the living room floor for about 15 minutes to relax," Jones says, "and the girls crawl all over me telling me the news of their day."

Sounds normal so far, but Jones does have a streak of eccentricity about him. He wouldn't be an actor if he didn't.

When he lies on the living room floor it's pretty uncomfortable. There isn't a rug or a stick of furniture in the room. His explanation for this is that the family spends most of its time in the den.

"Sure we can afford to furnish the living room, only we can't make up our minds about how to furnish it. It's been this way for years. Once we decided to fill it with antiques, then changed our minds in favor of contemporary stuff. After that we thought we'd buy our paintings first and then get suitable furniture."

That was more than a year ago. There are two paintings — abstracts—on the walls but still no chairs, tables or sofas.

The previous owner of the house carved a huge hole in the wall to hold a fancy aquarium, but Jones isn't particularly fond of fish and left the hole gaping.

Jones and a friend built a bar to hide the excavation, but it wasn't high enough. He solved the problem recently by filling the hole with a hi-fi set, which still leaves a lot to be desired from an esthetic standpoint.

Jones is so much like the guy next door that he isn't considered much of a celebrity in the neighborhood. And he has common, everyday problems, too. One of which is his weight.

He's skinny.

He weighs 157 pounds and would like to gain another 10. But a high metabolism and tremendous nervous energy keep him thin.

"I eat all day long," he admits. "Candy, cookies, soup, fruit juices. Anything I can get my hands on. But it doesn't do any good. I even lift weights and drink tiger's milk and swallow multi-vitamins. Still no good.

"My doctor said I could stay in bed the rest of my life and eat 24 hours a day and still not gain a pound."

The high-strung Jones boy should take several weeks off for a vacation. But this spring he will jump right into a new movie, "Under the Yum Yum Tree," when filming is completed on his NBC-TV series.

The picture will be completed just in time for him to hustle right back to Four Star studios and climb back into his ensign's uniform.

"Next season our show will be

Onions Don't Cry

Easy is the word for this zesty pea salad! It's a breeze to prepare.—And surprise! That delightful onion flavor doesn't require tears in the kitchen . . . dainty pearl onions come canned with the peas. You only need to open the can, drain and mix with the remaining salad ingredients.

Combined with crispy celery and mellow cubes of cheddar cheese, Simple Simon Salad is a flavor treat. It's expressly perfect if you are planning an Easter buffet. A double recipe serves eight to twelve, and along with the traditional baked ham, you'll have the makings of a tasty board.

Simple Simon Salad

½ cup chopped celery
¼ cup chopped green pepper
¼ pound cheddar cheese, cubed
½ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
1 tablespoon vinegar
¼ teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
One 17-oz. can small early peas with onions, drained
Lettuce

Toss together celery, green pepper and cheese. Blend mayonnaise or salad dressing with vinegar and seasonings. Add to cheese mixture with canned peas and onions; mix lightly. Chill thoroughly. Serve on crisp lettuce. Yield: 4 to 6 servings.

In the little town of Jerez, Spain, two of the best remembered names are Benjamin Franklin and Washington Irving. These two famed Americans were among the first steady customers in the U. S. for the sherry produced by Jerez.

Wife Preservers

Ordinary red clay flower pots will look like Mexican treasures if you paint on a little design work here and there.

When you buy flowers, examine the leaves. They show signs of droopiness before the flowers themselves, so if they droop, the flowers could be better.

A cane seat that's beginning to sag can often be tightened easily by rubbing the seat with a rag soaked in hot water, then setting chair in the sun to dry.

Week's Food Economies

With the two religious holidays Easter and Passover, markets are busy places supplying foods demands for the occasion, says Virginia L. McLuckie, food economist in the Baltimore office of the University of Maryland, Department of Markets.

Eggs have a definite association with these holidays. Egg prices are attractive and the supply generous. Grade A Large Size eggs are on of the best buys. In the Passover a roasted egg is used to symbolize eternal life.

Easter egg gifts in the modern family are a token of tender affection. The egg symbolizes the renewal of life and fertility to the Christian community. The decorating and dyeing of eggs has long been a folk art. There are numerous charming customs in relation to this practice of coloring eggs.

If you plan to color eggs for Easter, the dyes sold are harmless vegetable dyes which can be easily applied by following directions on the package. To hard cook eggs, start the cool egg from the refrigerator in cold water and bring slowly to the boiling point to prevent cracking the shells.

For the holiday season the best meat buys will be found in cured pork, ham and picnics and in turkey. These are meats recommended for price and for ease of preparation.

The best buys in produce are Florida cabbage, Texas grown beets and onions from Texas and Micigan. Cabbage prices are lower and quality generally very good. Select a solid heavy head for the best value. Fresh beets are delicious served hot with butter, salt and pepper. For flavor the juice of oranges bestows a contrast when used with beets. Beets may be cooked in their skins and best cooked with a cover on the pot. Onions need no emphasis for use in seasoning and general cookery. Other suggestions are sweet corn, asparagus and tomatoes.

Florida strawberries are now available as one of treats of the spring. This is the season for fresh pineapple which comes mostly from Puerto Rico. Color and odor are guides to quality and ripeness in fresh pineapple. Usually heavier fruit in relation to its size is desirable for a firm juicy fruit.

Rolled Chicken Breasts With Dressing

3 broiler-fryer breasts
3 slices country ham
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ cup (¼ lb.) butter or margarine
¾ cup chopped celery
½ cup chopped onion
3 cups toasted bread cubes
½ cup chopped water chestnuts
Paprika

Remove bones from chicken breasts and season with salt and pepper. Flatten out chicken breasts and place a slice of ham on each breast side where bone has been removed. Cook celery and onions in two tablespoons butter or margarine until tender, but not brown. Combine bread cubes, celery, onion, water chestnuts and two tablespoons additional melted butter or margarine. Toss together lightly and place over ham and chicken breasts. Roll up and tie with cord. Brush with remaining melted butter. Place in shallow baking pan and bake for one hour in a 350° F (moderate) oven, or until chicken is fork-tender. Sprinkle with paprika. Makes 3 servings.

Shellfish Make Delicious, Nutritious Lenten Dishes

Need ideas for some interesting food for Lenten meals? Mrs. Judith A. Pheil, Food and Nutrition Specialist at the University of Maryland, recommends Maryland seafood, particularly shellfish, as a suggestion for some attractive and delicious Lenten dishes. As you know, the Chesapeake Bay is noted for the oysters, crabs, and clams which thrive in its protected waters.

Shellfish are an excellent source of the minerals which the body needs to develop properly and perform its functions. Calcium and phosphorus, necessary for proper development of bones and teeth, occur in oysters, shrimp, and crabmeat. Compared with milk, these shellfish provide half as much calcium, five times as much magnesium, and slightly more phosphorus.

Iron and copper, which build up the hemoglobin content of the blood and prevent or remedy nutritional anemia, are easily obtained by eating most fish and shellfish. Oysters and shrimp are best known sources of these two minerals. Shellfish are also good natural sources of iodine.

Seafoods are important sources of complete protein, a type of food which must be included in the diet to provide the elements needed to grow and repair worn-out body tissues. Some species furnish vitamins in appreciable quantities.

What do you look for when buying shellfish? First of all, insist upon freshness. In selecting clams and oysters, be sure that the shells are tightly shut, indicating that the animals are alive. Or you may prefer to buy the meat separately as shucked shellfish. Crabs should be bought alive or as cooked meat.

Several species of clams are widely used for food. On the Atlantic coast, the marketed species are the hard clam, the soft clam, and the surf clam. In the Chesapeake Bay area, the soft clam is most abundant. The clam is sold fresh, frozen, and canned —as minced clams, chowder or clam cocktail.

Although blue crabs have an extensive range along the Atlantic coast, the Chesapeake Bay is the chief source. Every year between the first of June and the end of August, a new generation of crabs is produced.

The so-called "soft crab" is not a distinct species. The term is applied to any crab in the interval between shedding its old shell and hardening of the new one. Because the soft-shelled crab is considered especially choice, large numbers of young crabs are sought in the spring and summer while they are still molting. Soft crabs are shipped alive to market, while most hard crabs are steamed near the place of capture. The meat is picked out of the shell and shipped to market in iced containers. Some crab meat is also canned.

Fresh hard-shell and soft-shell crabs should be alive at time of cooking. Cooked hard-shell crabs must be kept refrigerated, iced or frozen from the time they are cooked until they are used.

Oysters are mollusks that grow best in shallow waters, never abundantly in the open ocean. Over half the oysters produced in the middle Atlantic area come from the Chesapeake Bay. Oysters may be purchased by the pint, quart or gallon or in the shell by the dozen. A quart of shucked oysters contains 40 to 75 oysters, depending on their size.

Mrs. Pheil offers a recipe for clam pie which she thinks is delicious.

- 2-7 ounce cans minced clams
- 1 cup chopped onion
- ¼ cup butter or fat, melted
- ¼ cup flour
- dash pepper
- 2 cups clam liquor and water
- ½ cup diced cooked carrots
- ½ cup chopped cooked celery
- 3 hard cooked eggs, chopped
- 1½ cups seasoned mashed potatoes

Drain clams and save liquor. Cook onion in butter until tender. Blend in flour and pepper; add liquor and cook until thick, stirring constantly. Add carrots, celery, egg, and clams. Place in a well-greased 1½ quart casserole. Cover with potatoes. Bake in hot oven, 425° F., for 20 to 25 minutes or until brown. Serves 6.

Pork Steaks Give Spice To Your Menu

Pork dishes can have great individuality. Since many pork cuts, with the exception of roasts, are best cooked by braising, this provides an opportunity to blend many flavors with the pork.

You can add spice to menus with this zesty combination. Cinnamon, allspice and cloves provide the seasonings for pork arm or blade steaks. Dried apricots and prunes cooked with the pork give a different, appealing taste. Fruit and pork are a popular pair.

A meat cookery fact to keep in mind when preparing pork is always to cook it well-done.

Arm and blade steaks are cut from the shoulder section of pork. Blade steaks have the blade bone as an identifying feature. Arm steaks have a small round bone.

Pork shoulder steaks are budget-wise meat cuts.

Pork steaks vary in size, so you may buy them according to your family's appetites.

Spicy Pork Steaks

4 pork arm or blade steaks, cut ½ inch thick
2 tablespoons lard or drippings
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
¼ cup water
2 tablespoons brown sugar
1 tablespoon vinegar
⅛ teaspoon cinnamon
⅛ teaspoon allspice
⅛ teaspoon cloves
12 prunes
16 dried apricot halves

Brown steaks in lard or drippings. Pour off drippings. Season with salt and pepper. Mix together water, brown sugar, vinegar, cinnamon, allspice and cloves. Pour over steaks. Add prunes and apricots. Cover tightly and simmer 45 minutes to 1 hour or until done. Thicken liquid for gravy, if desired. 4 servings.

Spur-of-the-moment picnics are as easy as opening the freezer door if you have sandwiches wrapped and ready for packing into picnic bag or basket. Most sandwich fillings freeze well. Some foods to avoid freezing are cooked egg white, mayonnaise or salad dressing and raw vegetables such as tomatoes, cucumber, lettuce, radishes, green pepper and carrots. Carefully wrapped sandiwches will keep in the freezer up to three weeks. Use plastic wrap or aluminum foil for a good air-tight seal. Keep other picnic foods in the freezer, too — cookies, cupcakes, tarts, hamburger and hot dog buns, preshaped hamburger patties and hot dogs.

Apple Tuna Salad Rolls

When you serve a salad filling in a roll you want that filling to have plenty of flavor verve and crunch as contrast to the bread. So it's hurray for these Apple Tuna Salad Rolls that fill the bill with their bouncy flavor.

The reason for all that zest is surprisingly simple . . . the combination of two favorites, tuna fish and canned apples slices. Maybe you never thought of putting them together before. Here it's done, and the juicy apple tang of the apple slices teams joyously with the mellow meatiness of the tuna. Then for crunch and even more flavor, toasted almonds and crisp celery bits join the mixture, with dressing to blend it all into one.

These rolls are hearty enough for a lunch or supper dish. They make good relishing fare for late evening refreshments. Also, for the lunch box toter you might pack the salad mixture in a small container to be spread fresh and thick on rolls at the lunch break.

To make these Apple Tuna Salad Rolls is altogether easy as you will see from the following directions:

Apple Tuna Salad Rolls

1 cup canned apple slices, drained and chopped
1 can (about 7 ounces) tuna
½ cup diced celery
½ cup chopped toasted almonds
½ teaspoon salt
¼ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
3 tablespoons French dressing
8 frankfurter rolls
Watercress, for garnish

Combine chopped apple slices, tuna, celery, almonds, salt and dressings. Toss lightly to mix; taste and add additional seasonings if needed. Chill about 1 hour to blend flavors. To serve, fill rolls with mixture and garnish with watercress. Makes 4 servings of 2 filled rolls per serving. (And for 8 servings, double the quantities, using entire can of apple slices.)

Sesame Seeds Stuff Pork Tenderloins

Since pork tenderloin is considered as a very tender cut of pork, it's always easy to find new ways of preparing this tasty meat. For instance, a stuffing is quite attractive. Here, too, different flavors may be introduced, such as sesame seed in this recipe.

After the tenderloins are cut lengthwise, almost through, you will notice they may be opened and laid flat for the stuffing. String or skewers are needed to fasten the two cuts of meat. Fasten the sides well, so the stuffing will remain inside during the cooking. After roasting, the string or skewers are removed.

Pork Tenderloin With Sesame Stuffing

2 pork tenderloins
1 bouillon cube
¼ cup hot water
¼ cup chopped celery
2 tablespoons chopped onion
¼ cup butter or margarine
¼ cup sesame seeds
2 cups toasted bread cubes
1 teaspoon poultry seasoning
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 egg, slightly beaten

Cut the pork tenderloins lengthwise, but not quite through. Dissolve bouillon cube in hot water. Cook celery and onion in butter or margarine until tender, about 5 minutes. Toast sesame seeds until lightly browned. Combine bouillon, celery and onion, sesame seeds, toasted bread, seasonings and egg for stuffing. Spread stuffing on cut surface of one pork tenderloin and place remaining pork tenderloin, cut side down, on stuffing. Fasten with string or skewers and place on a rack in an open roasting pan. Roast in a moderate oven (350° F.) for 1¼ to 1½ hours, or until done. 4 to 6 servings.

Recipe News: Pork Hocks, Dried Apples

Sometimes you may feel as though you've run the gamut of menu ideas, but there's always a new recipe to be tried.

For example, tender pork hocks with kidney beans and dried apples may be one combination you haven't thought of before . . . but it's worth trying. Here's a platter of hearty good eating!

Since meat serves as the focal point of most meals, the accompaniments or seasonings are important. Blending of fruits or vegetables and special flavorings can produce interesting results, as in this recipe.

Pork hocks are one of the less-demanded cuts of meat and are usually very economically priced. They should be braised or cooked in liquid. Additional moisture is essential in bringing out the flavor and in making the meat tender. Remember, the liquid should not boil; it should merely simmer.

Pork Hocks With Dried Apples

3 pounds pork hocks
Salt
Pepper
2½ cups dried kndney beans
1 quart water
1 tablespoon chopped onion
1 tablespoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 cups dried apples

Soak kidney beans overnight in 1 quart water. Measure water not absorbed by kidney beans and add enough to make 3½ cups. Brown pork hocks on all sides. Season with salt and pepper. Add kidney beans, 3½ cups water, onion, 1 tablespoon salt and ¼ teaspoon pepper. Cover tightly and simmer 1 hour. Add apples and continue to simmer 45 minutes or until meat, beans and apples are tender. 6 servings.

Meal-In-One Is Tops For Lent

Bright golden eggs nestled in a bed of tuna hash offer homemakers an easy-to-prepare new dish to serve hungry families during Lent. A complete meal in a dish, this hash combines canned tuna fish with cooked potatoes for a new version of the family's hash.

Busy homemakers will love the simplicity of the dish. Start with leftover cooked potatoes or use the new instant hash brown, cooked according to package directions. Lots of solid meat tuna is added for these meatless days. Crisp celery for texture, green pepper and pimiento for color and onion for flavor complete the hash. When the potato-tuna mixture is thoroughly heated in the oven, six eggs are dropped gently into "nests" to bake to desired doneness.

Drumsticks With A Beat

2 lbs. broiler-fryer drumbsticks (10 or 12)
1 cup fine dry bread crumbs, or crushed corn flake crumbs
1 teaspoon onion salt
1 teaspoon garlic salt
½ teaspoon black pepper
½ teaspoon monosodium glutamate
1 cup mayonnaise
2 tablespoons lemon juice
Dash of red pepper

Combine bread or corn flake crumbs with onion and garlic salt, pepper and monosodium glutamate. Coat each drumstick well with the crumb mixture. Place on greased cookie sheet or jelly roll pan; bake in a 400° F (hot) oven for 15 minutes to set crumbs.

Meanwhile, combine mayonnaise, lemon juice and red pepper. Remove chicken from the oven after the first 15 minutes and generously coat each drumstick with the mayonnaise mixture. Lower oven temeprature to 300° F (slow) and return chicken to oven. Bake for one hour or until tender, but not dry. Makes 8 servings.

Fresh spring asparagus is a pleasing addition to this meal and French bread may be heated in the oven while the eggs are baking. Cherry Cobbler, still warm and topped with whipped cream, makes further efficient use of the hot oven, cutting meal preparation time to a minimum. The bright color and hearty flavors of Tuna Hash Egg Nests are sure to stimulate the lagging appetites and please the heartiest eaters in your family.

March was celebrated as National Egg Month when egg supplies were abundant and prices were low. The versatility of eggs makes them perfect for Lenten menus. The nutrients contained in the golden goodness of the egg will give everyone the "get up and go" so needed in the busy spring days ahead.

W. Va. Native President Of Wheeling Steel

By United Press International

That's the way a close associate picture William A. Steele, president of the steel company whose new price increase Wednesday reverberated all the way to the White House.

Steele—the name has nothing to do with his getting into the steel industry—was born Jan. 1, 1900 in the tiny community of Union in rural Monroe County. But he spent much of his early life in Western Pennsylvania, graduating from the University of Pittsburgh in 1923 as a metallurgical engineer.

Like a lot of other West Virginians, the black-haired, fair-complexioned six-footer always manages to find time from his busy schedule to do some hunting and fishing. In fact, he's considered "a real outdoorsman."

Neighbors describe the Steele home in Wheeling as "modest" and note that the non-smoker is not "a big party man." They say Steele, father of three married children—daughters and a son—enjoys "the normal social amenities."

New Variety Of Tomato Is Developed At WVU

MORGANTOWN — A new tomato variety, the W. Va. '63, developed by the agricultural experiment station of West Virginia University is being released to the public this spring for the first time, said Dr. A. H. VanLandingham, director of the experiment station.

This new variety, developed during 13 years of research by the department of plant pathology, bacteriology, and entomology in cooperation with the department of horticulture, has two kinds of late blight resistance, as well as resistance to Verticillium and Fusarium wilt diseases.

Seed for this spring is limited, but a small supply has been set aside for distribution to West Virginia home gardeners who grow their own plants. Seed may be obtained free of charge as long as it lasts by writing to the Department of Plant Pathology, Bacteriology, and Entomology, Brooks Hall, West Virginia University, Morgantown. In addition, Dr. VanLandingham said that seed has been distributed to commercial plant growers throughout the state and they will have plants available for sale about the middle of May.

W. Va. '63 was developed primarily for the home garden, but is being studied to determine its suitability as a fresh-market and processing variey. The W. Va. '63 has a vigorous vine which provides excellent cover for the fruit and reduces sunscald. The fruit, of high color, ripens uniformly without green shoulders. It is globular in shape, is smooth and firm, resists cracking, and reaches about one-half pound in weight.

Greater Greensboro Open Launches PGA Summer Tour Today

Sam Snead Back To Seek Eighth Tourney Crown

GREENSBORO, N.C. (UPI)—Masters runnerup Tony Lema of San Leandro, Calif., and Gary Player of South Africa lead a field of some 140 pros and amateurs into the $35,000 Greater Greensboro Open golf tournament Thursday.

The 26th annual GGO, played over the 7,017-yard, par 72 Sedgefield Country Club course, is North Carolina's biggest golf show of the year and officially launches the summer tour of the Professional Golfers Assn.

Masters winner Jack Nicklaus passed up the GGO to return home and be with his wife who was expecting a baby. Arnold Palmer was another big name golfer not entered.

Casper, Souchak Back

Back to defend his title was Billy Casper of Apple Valley, Calif. Casper putted his way to victory over Mike Souchak of Durham on the final holes of last year's GGO. Souchak also was back.

Heading the list of past GGO winners was Sam Snead, who has won the GGO seven times and is a perennial gallery favorite in Greensboro despite sometimes acid remarks about the course, gallery or players.

The 50-year-old millionaire golfer from West Virginia has been in Greensboro all week, fishing and golfing. The slammer had his picture taken Monday with a nice mess of fish, straight out of a farm pond, and the next day fired a sizzling four-under-par 67 in a practice round at Sedgefield.

Other former champions entered in the four-day 72-hole tournament were Dow Finsterwald, Doug Ford, Bob Goalby, Doug Sanders, Stan Leonard and Souchak, who won in 1961.

Top Pro Entries

Top pro entries included Art Wall, Billy Maxwell, George Bayer, Lionel Hebert and Jay Hebert, Chi Chi Rodriques, Jim Ferrier and Dave Marr along with Bruce Nagle, former British Open champ from Australia, Bob Charles of New Zealand and Bruce Crampton of Austria.

The GGO is co-sponsored annually by the PGA and Greensboro Jaycees. This year the GGO featured a profit-sharing plan for the first time with a guarantee of $35,000 and the possibility of a larger amount depending on gate receipts.

SPEEDSTER SLOWED UP—A sad-looking Maury Wills takes whirlpool treatment in the dressing room yesterday at Wrigley Field in Chicago. The Los Angeles Dodger shortstop, who jammed his left ankle sliding into home plate in Tuesday's opener, was sent to a hospital for X-rays and missed yesterday's game with the Chicago Cubs. The fleet Wills stole a record 104 bases last season. In spite of his absence from the Los Angeles lineup yesterday, the Dodgers scored a 2-1 victory over the Cubs. (AP Photofax)

Cassius Clay Will Fight Henry Cooper In London

Wembley Stadium Is Site Of June Heavyweight Bout

NEW YORK (UPI) — Cassius Clay, cocky, unbeaten young heavyweight, Wednesday accepted a June fight in London against Henry Cooper, the British and Empire champion, after a proposed match with Floyd Patterson fell through.

The breakdown in the Patterson Clay negotiations was accompanied by the usual confusion and counter-charges characteristic of such boxing matters.

Tom Bolan, president of Championship Sports Inc., charged that Clay had turned down a Patterson bout because he was "under obligation" to fight for Madison Square Garden.

In the meantime, promoter Jack Solomons announced in London that Clay and Cooper will meet in a 10-round bout at 100,000 seat Wembley Stadium in June.

"All arrangements for the fight other than the exact date have been finalized," Solomons said.

The British promoter said he would confer with the British Board of Boxing Control Thursday to determine the exact June date for the match.

The 21-year-old Clay, undefeated in 18 professional bouts, is the most highly sought contender in boxing. He is ranked second among heavyweight challengers, behind Patterson. Cooper is ranked sixth by the World Boxing Association and eighth by Ring Magazine among the challengers for Sonny Liston's crown.

Tigers Nip Chisox Behind Aguirre

DETROIT (AP)—Hank Aguirre mowed the Chicago White Sox down with a seven-hitter and the Detroit Tigers bunched three of their four hits into the first inning for two runs in a 2-1 victory Wednesday.

Aguirre, the 1962 American League earned run champion, yielded a run in the first and protected his 2-1 lead te rest of the way.

Billy Bruton's double, and infield singles by Al Kaline and Dick McAuliffe were the only hits Eddie Fisher allowed as the Tigers touched him for their two runs in the first. Reliever Gary Peters allowed the fourth hit when he took over for Fisher in the seventh.

Rec Cage Loop Series Evened

Robinson's, Wise Chips Triumph

The championship playoff series in both of the City Recreation Basketball Leagues will go down to the wire, as a result of last night's outcomes.

Robinson's Plumbers posted a 70-64 triumph over Peskin's to square their best-of-three series in the men's league at one game apiece. They'll meet for the title tonight at 8 p.m. at Allegany High School.

Charlie Robinson fired in 19 points last night to pace the Plumbers, who trailed 52-50 at the end of the third period before spurging for 20 tallies in the final frame. John and Jim Rice and Ronnie Bruce collected ten apiece for Robinson's. Junie Perry was Peskin's big gunner with 22.

Wise Chips, after leading 27-14 at halftime, had to stave off a second half rally by the Essomen. Pete Mechem tossed in 14 points for the Chippers, and Jim Bowman had 11 for Diehl's.

Sellout Assured For Deciding Laker-Hawk NBA Playoff Game

Western Division Club Play Tonight At Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A sellout was assured Wednesday for the final Western Division playoff game between the Los Angeles Lakers and the St. Louis Hawks in the National Basketball Association Thursday night.

The final remaining seats for the 15,000 capacity Sports Arena were quickly gobbled up by early afternoon.

By mid-morning, a Laker spokesman said, some 400 buyers were lined up outside the arena.

The Lakers had the Hawks down 3-2 in the playoffs after five games and this considered a bad omen by some supporters. Last year in the NBA championship, the Lakers had the Boston Celtics down 3-2 but lost the series.

Romney Wins Meet

Romney High defeated the West Virginia School for the Deaf yesterday afternoon in a junior high track meet. The final score was 75½-52½. The meet was staged on the WVSD track.

Pittsburgh Edges Milwaukee, 3-2; Baltimore Wins Home Opener

Don Cardwell's Pirate Debut Is Successful

Clendenon Belts Homer For Bucs; Shaw Takes Loss

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Donn Clendenon smacked a leadoff homer in the eighth inning Wednesday to help Pittsburgh edge the Milwaukee Braves 3-2 and enable righthander Don Cardwell to make a successful debut as a Pirate.

Clendenon's homer, his second in three games, came off starter and loser Bob Shaw who had put Milwaukee in front momentarily with a two-run single in the fourth inning.

Cardwell surrendered five hits and six walks. He needed help in the ninth inning after yielding a pinch single to Gus Bell and walking Don Dillard. Lefthander Bob Veale replaced Cardwell and got Tommy Aaron on a fly ball to end the game.

The Pirates got their first run in the fifth inning when Bob Bailey led off with a double and tallied after Cardwell and Dick Schofield grounded out. They tied the count in the sixth frame on Roberto Clemente's double, a sacrifice and Bill Mazeroski's sacrifice fly.

Teacher of Champions

Don January, competing in Palm Springs Classics of 1961 and 1963, scored aces on same hole at Indian Wells C. C.

DON JANUARY, playing in the Palm Springs, added to golfing records.

The tall, slender Texan hit the 1961 jackpot for $50,000 by making an ace on the Indian Wells C. C. 14th 148-yard hole. The date was Feb. 2. Again on Feb. 2, 1963, Don hit another 8-iron from the tee into the cup, but this second ace wasn't on a hole insured by Lloyd's.

Under Don's quiet and pleasant exterior lies a very practical philosophy and sense of humor which enable him to evaluate his golfing performances with better than average accuracy.

His friend, Ken Still, on seeing the ace ball roll into the hole asked: "Are we splitting, Don?" January replied:

"Yes, you get half of nothing."

SPIRITED LIQUOR SALES

Orioles Rally For 3-2 Victory Over Senators

Birds Score All Runs In Bottom Of Ninth Inning

BALTIMORE (AP) — Jerry Adair's bases loaded sacrifice fly drove in the winning run as the Baltimore Orioles scored all their runs in the ninth inning and defeated the Washington Senators 3-2 Wednesday.

The long fly made Adair the only Baltimore batter retired in the ninth by three Washington pitchers.

Jackie Brandt opened the last inning rally by hitting his first homer of the season off Washington starter Claude Osteen. Osteen then walked Brooks Robinson on four pitches and Steve Hamilton replaced him on the mound to face Jim Gentile.

Beats Out Bunt

Gentile grounded a single to left, just out of the reach of shortstop Ed Brinkman. Then Al Smith beat out a bunt down the third base line, loading the bases. Boog Powell walked on a 3-2 pitch to force in Robinson with the tying run.

Washington cashed in on its only scoring chance in the seventh inning, and would have scored more except for a base running boner by Osteen.

Back-to-back doubles by Don Lock and Larry Osborne off Oriole starter Robin Roberts scored the first run of the game. Then, with two outs, Brinkman singled home Osborne with the second run. Osteen also singled, sending Brinkman to second and Roberts to the showers.

Fails To Touch Base

Pinch hitter Jim King hit another drive to right field off relief pitcher Dick Hall which should have scored Brinman. But Osteen failed to touch second base on his way to third, and was ruled out on a force play when the Orioles called for an appeal play.

Wes Stock, the third Oriole pitcher, was credited with the victory. He retired all three men he faced in the ninth. The loser was Hamilton.

The game, played in 46-degree weather, attracted 26,859 fans to Memorial Stadium. The victory was the second for Baltimore in home - and - home openers with Washington this week.

Pole Vaulter Again Betters World Mark

NATCHITOCHES, La. (AP) — Pole vaulter John Pennel again bettered the world record Wednesday with a leap of 16 feet, 4 inches.

Officials said a surveyor would be called in Thursday to check the measurement to see if it would be submitted as a record.

Pennel easily vaulted 16-4 on his second try Wednesday in an outdoor triangular meet with Northwestern Louisiana State and McNeese. On his first attempt his feet knocked the bar off as he was coming down.

He next tried 16-6, but failed three times.

Sonny Liston Visits Prison Where He Learned To Box

Champion Dines And Gets Haircut At Missouri Pen

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Heavyweight champion Sonny Liston, sporting a new automobile and fashionable attire, kept a luncheon date and got a haircut Wednesday with some old friends.

Smiling and cheerful, Liston told his acquaintances that former champion Floyd Patterson would provide only slight competition in their upcoming fight.

"I'll slaughter him," said Liston, "and if he runs, I'll chase him, catch him, and then slaughter him."

Prison officials invited the guest to dine in the officers dining room, but the champion elected to have a lunch of chipped beef, potatoes, beans and milk with the convicts.

Youth Science Camp Scheduled In W. Va.

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Governors from 49 states have accepted invitations to send two of their brightest high school seniors to the Centennial National Youth Science Camp in Pocahontas County this summer.

Gov. W. W. Barron announced Wednesday that 21 of the states have already selected the boys they are sending and the others are in the process of doing so.

The camp will be held June 30 to July 20 in the area of the National Radio Astronomy Observatory at Green Bank. Barron said the boys will mix outdoor recreation at the camp with science studies at the observatory.

The governor said, the bringing together of "100 of the brightest boys in America at this camp will be good for the boys and for the state of West Virginia."

SPORTS SPUTTERINGS

By Walter L. Johns, Central Press Sports Editor

AND SO the Score book is closed.

And we, and all baseball, are sorry.

Herbert Jude Score, pitcher, has called it quits.

Actually, he called it quits the night of May 7, 1957, although he made a courageous but futile six-year comeback attempt, with disheartening results.

It was on that night, those nearly six years ago, that Herb, then ranked as a million-dollar kid, was struck in the eye by a line drive off the bat of Gil McDougald, an injury which kept him inactive the rest of the year and MUST have been the cause for his downfall.

He tried again and again and never quite made that comeback. It looked for a time last year like Herb might finally make it when he pitched very well for Indianapolis and earned another chance in the White Sox camp.

But he couldn't get the ball over the plate this spring and as the season opener neared he was told he was being sent back to the minors. Herb finally decided that the long battle had ended. He was quitting—for good.

• • •

WHEN SCORE first came up, after a sensational year at Indianapolis where he had won 22 games and lost five and struck out 330 batters in 251 innings pitched to set a new Association record, everyone knew that here was a great pitcher in the making.

He could rocket that fast ball over the plate with spectacular speed, and although he was wild, everyone felt that Herb would control that wildness as he gained poise and experience. Bob Feller, who preceded him in Cleveland as a fireballer, had been wild, too.

In his first season with the Indians, Herb lived up to expectations. He won 16 games and his 245 strikeouts led the league.

At this time Herb was one of the most-valued properties in all baseball and reports had it that one club, believed to be the Red Sox, would have paid a million dollars for him.

• • •

CAME THE tragic 1957 season. Herb started out well again, was 2-1 early in May.

It was a night game against the Yankees in Cleveland. Herb was going along all right when he threw one down the pipe to McDougald, the Yankee infielder. Gil lashed it right back at the mound and Herb, following through with the pitch, couldn't duck out of the way.

At first it was thought he'd lose his eye. Everyone was relieved when it was saved. He pitched no more that year.

And starting in 1958 he made his first comeback. He has been making them since, both with the Indians and White Sox, having been traded to the Sox in April of 1960.

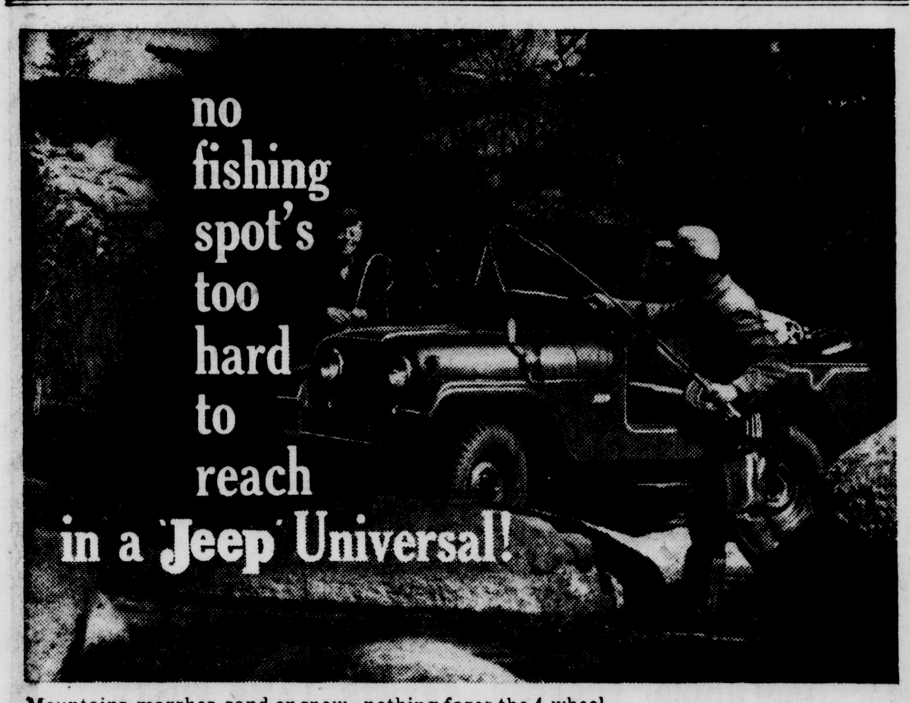

In that comeback, over 129 games, Herb won just 24 games while losing 32. This just wasn't good enough.

Boston Celtics Win Eighth Straight Eastern Championship In NBA

Royals Beaten, 142-131, In Final Playoff Contest

Sam Jones Scores 47 Points, Russell Grabs 24 Rebounds

BOSTON (UPI) — The aging Celtics, erupting in the torrid scoring spurt that carried them to five world titles, routed the Cincinnati Royals 142-131 Wednesday night, for Boston's eighth straight Eastern championship.

The Celtics, behind the sensational shooting of backcourt ace Sam Jones, who scored 47 points, thus struck midnight for Cincinnati's Cinderella team in the seventh and final game of the National Basketball Association Eastern playoffs.

The never-day-die Royals, who had upset Syracuse in the Eastern preliminaries, fought back in the dying minutes to outscore Boston 17-2 and chop a 25-point deficit to nine before the Celtics pulled away for the final time.

The victory qualified the Celtics to meet the winner of the Los Angeles-St. Louis series which will be settled Thursday night. First game in the best of seven finals is scheduled here Saturday night.

Jones Delights Crowd

Sam Jones, held to a 17-point average through the first six games of the Eastern finals, scored 19 in the second quarter alone Wednesday night to delight a Boston Garden capacity crowd of 13,909.

The veteran guard hit on seven successive floor shots in one hot second quarter spree as he fell just one point short of Wilt Chamberlain's Garden record for points in a period.

When Jones finally tired, the veteran Bob Cousy, in his 13th and final professional season, took over to assist on four straight baskets as the Celtics' fast break opened the gap between the two teams.

Game Little Contest

The game was little contest through most of the last period as the Celtics, leading by four at the half and 15 at three-quarters, romped to a top lead of 25 at 123-98.

Oscar Robertson continued as Cincinnati's scoring leader with 43 points while Adrian Smith was second at 19. Wayne Embry had 18 and Jack Twyman 17.

Tom Heinsohn, who fired the Boston attack early in the game and was the recipient of Cousy's 16 assist passes, had 31 points. Cousy tossed in 21 himself while Bill Russell hauled down 24 rebounds and scored 20 points.

Alabama Begins Probe Of Grid Rig Controversy

Post Publishers Say Charges True

ATLANTA (UPI) — Alabama investigators Wednesday began questioning eight to ten persons in Georgia who figured in a report that an Alabama-Georgia football game last fall allegedly was fixed.

Alabama Atty. Gen. Richmond Flowers, acting for an Alabama Senate investigating committee, started his investigation by conferring for two hours with Georgia Atty. Gen. Eugene Cook. Flowers said he would retrace ground previously covered by Cook, who recently completed an investigation of a story published in the Saturday Evening Post.

Flowers emphasized, however, that he would not have time to question the sources as extensively as Cook did. The Alabama official, who arrived here Wednesday with two aides, is scheduled to leave the state Thursday.

Flowers said it was also doubtful if he would talk to former Georgia Athletic Director Wally Butts, who the Post alleged rigged the game with Alabama coach Paul (Bear) Bryant.

Shortly before the two officials met, the Curtis Publishing Co., defendant in a $10 million libel suit filed by Butts, filed an answer saying the accusations in the Post were true.

Curtis said the accusations published by the Saturday Evening Post were true and the company still refuses to print a "correction" or retraction that Butts had demanded.

The Alabama committee had previously invited Cook to come to the neighbor state to help with its investigation but Cook declined. Flowers said his group had already questioned Bryant and members of the Alabama football team.

Kansas City Gives Finley Seven-Year Contract

Athletics Given Rental Reduction

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Charles O. Finley, who launched his Kansas City Athletics on their 1963 season with Kelly green uniforms, got the red carpet treatment Wednesday from the lame duck mayor and city council in an emergency session.

The council approved by a 6-1 vote an emergency ordinance, giving Finley a 7-year contract, under which he would pay the city only $1 a year for the first two years for use of Municipal Stadium.

The contract, which also provides Finley with a possible means of escape from Kansas City, was passed by the council 10 minutes after the newly elected city council was due to take office. Two of the members were absent, including the only member who was re-elected.

Finley had sought the rental reduction after he learned the city proposed to give similar consideration to the Dallas Texans professional football team if it is moved to Kansas City. City officials have estimated the $1 a year provision will cost the financially hard-hit city about $200,000 for the two years, 1963 and 1964.

The new contract also will allow Finley to remove his club if the paid attendance fails to reach 850,000. It has failed to reach that figure the past three years, dropping to 635,675 last season.

The Athletics, which never have finished higher than sixth place since coming to Kansas City from Philadelphia in 1955, drew more than one million fans the first two years, and close to that number several years more.

As the fans became disillusioned with "building programs" that failed to improve an admittedly dismal team, attendance dropped off. The team finished ninth last year amid reports Finley wanted to move it to Dallas.

The new council of mayor and 12 councilmen was scheduled to be sworn in at 10 a.m. But when the time came the old council still was in session on the ordinance. It ran 10 minutes overtime and then the ceremony was delayed some more while Finley and the out-going mayor, H. Roe Bartle, himself defeated for re-election, signed the lease.

It being an emergency measure, the new city council will be unable to revoke it.

Beall Whips Keyser High In Track Meet

Frostburgers Cop Easy 121-26 Win

Beall High School scored its second consecutive track victory of the 1963 season yesterday by decisively downing Keyser High, 121-26, at Frostburg.

Hefty senior Gary Baker broke his own school record in the discus with a toss of 136 feet, three inches. His former standard of 127-11½ was set last year in the Potomac Valley Conference meet.

Phils Best Reds In 10-7 Slugfest

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Philadelphia Phillies rapped Cincinnati pitching for eight runs in the seventh inning to overcome a five-run deficit and defeat the Reds 10-7 Wednesday night.

Reliefers Al Worthington, Bill Henry and Jim Brosnan were victims of the uprising, with a single by Don Demeter off Brosnan breaking a 7-7 tie and a two-run homer by Clay Dalrymple providing the extra margin.

The victory went to Ray Culp, who pitched two innings of relief in his first major league appearance. Culp came on after Cal McLish gave up four runs in the third and Jack Hamilton yielded two in the fourth, building up a 6-2 lead for Maloney. The youngster struck out the first two batters he faced, but allowed Gordy Coleman's second homer of the year in the seventh. Jack Baldschun finished out the game.

America
with freckles
There's nothing in America that typifies the country, and its philosophies, more than the newspaperboy. Call him what you may; newspaperboy, paper carrier or capitalist in sneaks, he stands for America and the "free enterprise" system.
He's a retailer, a salesman, an accountant and a business firm all rolled into one. The newspaperboy earns his own spending money, while providing a valuable service to his community. He learns, at an early age, to be both independent and dependable.
In the newspaperboy, we see responsibility recognized and accepted with the same youthful vitality that has been the backbone of our country since its conception. He is America with freckles, in today's newspaperboy lives tomorrow's America.

Baseball's Best Bets For The 1963 Season

By STEVE SNIDER
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI —Baseball's best bets for 1963:

The pennants—New York Yankees and Los Angeles Dodgers, both in a bitter struggle. The Yankees have more question-marks than usual but make winning a habit. And it can't happen twice in a row—the flop, that is—to the Dodgers.

Batting champs —Mickey Mantle of the Yankees, if he stays in one piece, and Frank Robinson, Cincinnati's solid socker.

Best relievers —Dick Radatz of the Red Sox and Elroy Face of the Pirates.

Comeback of the year — Gus Triandos of the Tigers, finally moved out of Baltimore, and either Duke Snider of the New York Mets or Don Hoak of the Phillies in the National League.

Most total bases — Mickey Mantle of the Yankees and Frank Robinson of Cincinnati, who hit for distance as well as average.

Best pinch hitters — Dick Williams of the Red Sox and Smokey Burgess of the Pirates.

Stolen bases—who else but the perennials — Luis Aparicio, running for Baltimore instead of the White Sox, and Maury Wills of the Dodgers? It's downhill all the way for that pair.

Face Rough Roads

Toughest jobs ahead—Tommy Davis of the Dodgers retaining his battle title; Giants getting into the world series again; Hank Aguirre putting together another big year of pitching at Detroit; Bobby Bragan trying to make something out of the Milwaukee Braves; Casey Stengel, every day the Mets have a game.

Most valuable players — make it four for Mickey Mantle of the Yankees and no. 2 for Frank Robinson of Cincinnati even if the Reds don't win a pennant.

Leading the league in being tossed out by umpires — Bobby Bragan of Milwaukee, among the managers; Jim Piersall of the Washington Senators, the usual player favorite.

Biggest disappointment — Delayed opening of new Shea Stadium home of the Mets, scheduled for April of '63. Only the optimists are betting the Mets will get in there as early as August.

Red Sox Hand Angels 4-1 Loss

Wilson Limits LA To Six Hits

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Carl Yastrzemski, hailed as the eventual slugging successor to Ted Williams, started a four-run rally in the third inning Wednesday by doubling in two runs that paved the way for a 4-1 Boston Red Sox victory over the Los Angeles Angels.

The Red Sox outburst came off Angel starter Dean Chance, who failed to finish the third inning after giving up five hits during the Boston splurge that included another double by Lou Clinton.

The victory was the first major league win as a manager for Johnny Pesky who took over the Red Sox this season after having once starred for the club at shortstop.

Earl Wilson, who hurled a no-hitter against the Angels last season, gave up a run in the first inning and then settled down to blank Los Angeles the rest of the way. He allowed only six hits.

The Red Sox found their batting eyes by getting 12 safeties, seven of them off loser Chance.

Thorn Reported 'Doing Very Well'

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (UPI) — First baseman Rod Thorn was reported "doing very well" in West Virginia University Medical Hospital Wednesday but is expected to remain for further observation the next day or two.

WVU's team physician, Dr. J. W. Hesen, said he felt that Thorn should recover without any ill effects after being hit in the head by a baseball Monday at Buckhannon during the Mountaineers 4-3 win over Wesleyan.

Hesen said further observation of Thorn will decide whether he will join his teammates, presently swinging through the southern states during an Easter vacation, 10-game road trip. The doctor described Thorn's injury as a "mild concussion" and not a fracture.

Tee Pee, Legion To Windup Series

Leading by 11 points at the halfway point in the six-game series, the Tee Pee hopes to wrap up the playoff title in the Frostburg Men's Shuffleboard League when it meets the American Legion tonight at Farrady Post Home.

Titans Undecided About Head Coach

NEW YORK (UPI) — An official of the New York Titans football organization said Wednesday that no decision has yet been reached regarding a new head coach.

The spokesman said it was possible the club's new president, Sonny Warblin, would announce his choice of a coach next Monday.

Three PVC Games Set For Today

Jackets, Circleville Play Opening Tilts

Moorefield and Circleville are scheduled to play their opening game of the Potomac Valley Conference baseball season today.

Coach George Hott's Moorefield High School Yellowjackets are slated to play the Petersburg Vikings at Moorefield while Franklin High's Panthers will host Coach Guy Propst's Circleville High School Indians.

Hott begins his fifth year as Jackets' mentor. His 1962 team posted a 6-3-1 record and his three teams have won 24, lost 9 and played one tie game. Wayne Barr's Vikings kicked off the lid Tuesday with an 8-6 decision over Franklin.

Circleville's 1962 record was 6-3-1.

In another P.V.C. game on tap for today, Mathias (1-0) will entertain the Paw Paw Pirates (1-1.)

Nine of the 17 schools fielding baseball teams in the P.V.C. already have opened the season.

Hyndman High School's Hornets will be making their second start of the season in the Bedford County League when they tackle Northern Bedford High School at Hopewell. The Bedford High Bisons invade Saxton to do battle with Tussey Mountain.

Ycaza Ties Record At Kentucky Track

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — Panamanian jockey Manuel Ycaza rode five winners on the eight-race program at Keeneland race course Wednesday to tie the all-time-one-day winning record set by Steve Brooks in 1955.

His winners included Kentucky Derby - eligible Chateaugay in the featured Elk Hill Purse in the seventh, and long-shot Alemar in the sixth, which paid $24.40 to win.

Mantle And Howard Rip Homers, Yankees Stop KC

New Yorkers Halt Athletics' Rally For 5-3 Triumph

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Elston Howard and Mickey Mantle smashed home runs for New York and the Yankees stood off a ninth inning rally to edge out the Kansas City Athletics 5-3 Wednesday.

Bill Stafford started for the Yankees and had shut out the A's on three hits before he was forced to leave with an elbow injury with two out in the seventh inning.

Jim Bouton, who succeeded him, walked four men, two of them to start the A's on their three-run rally in the ninth.

Koufax Shines As LA Dodgers Nip Cubs, 2-1

Sandy Yields Five Hits, Whiffs Ten

CHICAGO (UPI)—The Los Angeles Dodgers beat the Chicago Cubs, 2-1, Wednesday on only five hits and without an earned run.

Sandy Koufax, sidelined with an injured index finger on his left hand the last half of the 1962 season, pitched his first complete game since July 4 for his first win since July 12.

Koufax allowed the Cubs 5 hits and struck out 10, the 41st time in which he has fanned ten or more batters in a game.

His pitching rival, Bob Buhl, worked eight innings but his mates made three errors and a passed ball behind him to give the Dodgers both their runs.

Willie Davis produced the first without the aid of a hit. He was hit by a Buhl pitch to open the first inning, stole second and third and scored on catcher Dick Bertell's wild throw to third for an error.

The winning run came when Dick Tracewski was safe on a fielder's choice, reached second on a passed ball and scored on Davis' single.

Twins' Homers Beat Tribe, 5-3

Killebrew, Banks Rap Four-Baggers

ST.PAUL MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) —Harmon Killebrew and George Banks hit two - run homers Wednesday to give the Minnesota Twins a 5-3 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

Banks' circuit blow came in the second inning when the Twins scored three runs off Cleveland starter and loser Sam McDowell. Earl Battey, whose single scored the doubling Bob Allison, crossed the plate ahead of Banks.

Killebrew, who led the American League with 48 homers last season, blasted a Barry Latman fast ball 400 feet into the teeth of a stiff wind. His homer in the eighth scored Vic Power who had singled and provided the margin of victory.

Jim Kaat, the winningest southpaw in the league last year, allowed nine hits in gaining the victory. He gave up a solo homer to pinch-hitter Gene Green in the eighth and a two-run single to Mike de la Hoz in the ninth.

Cardinals Blank Mets Again, 4-0

Ray Washburn Hurls 4-Hitter

NEW YORK (AP)—Ray Washburn pitched the St. Louis Cardinals to their second straight shutout victory over the New York Mets Wednesday, 4-0.

Washburn, a 24-year-old righthander who won 12 as a rookie last year, gave the Mets only four hits. He retired 17 in a row from the second until he walked Tim Harkness in the eighth.

The Cards eked out a run in the fifth without benefit of a base hit. Julian Javier was hit by a pitched ball and took second on a balk by Jackson. Washburn's sacrifice moved Javier to third and he scored ahead of rookie shortstop Al Moran's throw to the plate on Curt Flood's grounder.

No. 26900 Equity in the Circuit Court For Allegany County, Maryland.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

This is to give notice that on the 22nd day of March, 1963 a petition was filed in the Circuit Court for Allegany County, State of Maryland by the Plaintiff against the Defendants whose last known address was Bristol, Pennsylvania and Levitstown, Pennsylvania. The Petition alleges in substance that the Petitioners on July 27, 1961 conveyed unto the Defendant, Lutricia N. That the Petitioners retained for themselves a reversionary interest in the said property. That on March 19, 1963, the Plaintiffs received a phone call from the Defendant William Abate, Levitstown, Pennsylvania threatening to remove certain premanent fixtures from the said premises.

The Plaintiffs have thereupon requested the Allegany County Circuit Court sitting in Equity to temporarily restrain the said Lutricia N. Streeter and William Abate from removing the said fixtures.

In Memoriam

Somewhere back of the sunset,
Where beauty never dies,
He lives in that land of glory,
With the blue and gold of the skies.
And we who have known and loved him,
Whose parting has brought sad tears,
Will cherish his memory forever,

Del. Beall Sees Higher Taxes, Blames Demos

GOP Leader Hoists Hurricane Warning

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Republican leader in Maryland's House of Delegates predicted Wednesday that taxes will have to be increased next year and he criticized the Democratic administration for not telling the public the same thing.

"You are being led to believe that Maryland has clear sailing on fiscal waters," Del. J. Glenn Beall Jr. told a Baltimore business group, "but actually, the storm clouds have gathered on the horizon and our course is taking us right to the heart of a financial hurricane.

"There must be a conscientious effort made to reduce government expenses and the public should be made aware of the fact that, of necessity, there will have to be a tax increase next year."

Beall and his minority colleagues tried unsuccessfully from the floor to make deeper cuts in the budget of Gov. Tawes.

Points To Surplus Cut

While the governor has boasted the budget of $606 million was balanced without new or increased taxes, Beall pointed out it was accomplished by reducing a surplus of $23.5 million to $1 million.

"We are not in good shape and the administration apparently ignored the requirement that income must equal outgo in the hope that, like the common cold, this problem would disappear."

The Republican leader also told the Wednesday Club that the Tawes administration had fallen down during the past legislative session on congressional redistricting, automobile inspection and highway needs.

He called the Democratic plan to create a new congressional district out of Carroll, Howard, Calvert, and Anne Arundel counties "the worst piece of legislation put through the General Assembly."

Republicans will join forces with the League of Women Voters in trying to block the new district by petitioning it to referendum.

Cites Other "Failures"

Although Gov. Tawes had endorsed mandatory automobile inspection in his opening message to the legislature, none was enacted "in the absence of administration support," Beall said.

He also was critical of a report to the legislature by the state roads commission of a future highway needs study without offering any ideas on how it was to be financed.

Beall estimated it would cost between $4 and $6 billion, "but the finance plan, if it exists, has not been brought out of the closet."

Beall did praise Democratic steps taken to improve higher education and gave qualified approval to those on equal public accommodations and abolition of slot machines.

He said the accommodations bill had been watered down because it affects only 11 of the 23 counties and the slots bill allowed the machines five more years of existence.

Republican Club Elects Delegates

The Young Republican Club of Allegany County last night elected delegates to attend the Maryland State Federation of Young Republican Clubs convention on May 17 and 18 in Frederick.

The delegates include Ralph M. Buser Jr., president of the club, Mrs. Erma Buser, Miss Jane Williams, Mrs. Betty Foster, Mrs. Betty Armstrong and Lee C. Barnett.

Donald W. Mason, a member of the club and a vice president of the state federation, outlined the plans for the convention at last night's meeting.

The club also unanimously passed a motion to assist the Maryland State Central Committee and the Maryland League of Women Voters in obtaining signatures on petitions opposing the congressional redistricting plan which was passed during the recent session of the Maryland legislature.

Guest speaker for the evening was Mayor Earl D. Chaney who discussed accomplishments and plans for Cumberland.

Car Accident Injuries Fatal To 8-Year-Old

Gary Jordon Dies In Hospital

Gary Lester Jordon, 8, of 225 Harrison Street, died last night in Memorial Hospital of injuries he received in an auto accident Sunday night on Oldtown Road.

The boy had not regained consciousness since being admitted to the hospital, where he underwent immediate surgery for brain damage. He died at 6:10 p.m. yesterday.

The boy was injured in a one-car accident on State Route 51 Sunday, when the car in which he was a passenger skidded while attempting to pass other vehicles and ran into a bank, throwing the boy and his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus L. Mowery, from the car.

Mrs. Mowery remains a patient in Memorial Hospital. Mr. Mowery was released Monday.

Gary was born in Cumberland September 3, 1954. He was a son of Dennis Jordon and Dolores (Mowery) Jordon Kauffman, Hyattsville.

He was a third grade student at Johnson Heights School and was a member of St. Mark's United Church of Christ.

Besides his parents he is survived by his stepfather, William Kauffman, Hyattsville; two half-sisters, Melody Ann and Brenda Lee Kauffman, Hyattsville, and his maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Mowery, with whom he made his home.

The body is at the George Funeral Home where the family will receive friends today from 7 until 9 p.m. and tomorrow from 2 until 4 p.m. and 7 until 9 p.m.

$15,000 Grants For City OKd

The Community Facilities Administration has approved two Accelerated Public Works projects and grants totaling $15,000 for Cumberland, Commissioner Signey H. Woolner announced yesterday.

Water systems and sewers will be constructed with the APW funds, the commissioner said, and will provide 20 man-months of labor in the county. Total cost of the projects, including local financial participation, is $29,000.

The approved projects were listed as an $8,000 grant for a sewer project and $7,000 for water system.

On March 1 Rep. Carlton R. Sickles, D-Md., announced approval by the Urban Renewal Administration of $14,000 in grants to Cumberland to assist in extending sewer facilities here.

City officials said last night it was not clear for which local projects the $15,000 was allocated.

New Mission To Observe Charter Sunday

LaVale Lutherans Will Organize

The Lutheran Mission of LaVale will observe Charter Sunday, Easter at the 11 a. m. worship service.

Persons who intend to become members of the new congregation at the time of its organization will be invited to be among the first signers of the official charter. This particular charter will be intended for those who will be confirmed members of the congregation at a later date.

There will be a special page to the charter for children to sign as an indication they will be received as baptized members at the time of organization.

The charter will be kept open until Organization Day, Sunday, June 23, at 11 a. m.

Rev. Albert R. Burkhardt is mission developer for this new group. He began his work in LaVale officially March 1 and has been conducting worship services since that time.

One of the purposes of the charter is to petition the Maryland Synod of the Lutheran Church in America and the Board of American Missions to permit the organization of a congregation in LaVale. It is necessary to have at least 60 names on the charter before the time of organization.

At the present time the mission is holding services at 520 National Highway. Sunday church school is held at 9:30 a. m. and worship at 11 a. m.

Indicted Man Faces New Counts

A South Cumberland man who was indicted last week by the April term of the grand jury on eight counts of false pretense in the passing of bad checks was arrested again yesterday on two charges of forgery.

The man, Donald Lee Festerman, 28, of 933 Glenwood Street, was picked up by City Police Tuesday night and is being held in County Jail.

County Investigator William F. Baker questioned Festerman yesterday in connection with two forged checks for $187 and $186 which were cashed at two local food markets.

Festerman will be tried Monday in Allegany County Circuit Court on the eight charges of passing bad checks which totaled over $1,200. These checks were given to the Baughman Contracting Company, Engle's Food Market and Allen's Pharmacy.

Authorities said criminal information also may be filed on the forgery counts so Festerman may be tried on all the charges next week.

County Voters Total 39,448 At Month's End

Although 25 prospective new voters registered during March with the registrars of the Allegany County Board of Election Supervisors in the Court House basement, the number of registered voters dropped to 39,448 as of April 1.

John R. Kelly and Irvin J. Neat, registrars, added 19 Republicans and six Democrats last month. However, the names of 80 other former voters, now deceased, were removed during March. They included 43 Republicans, 36 Democrats and one independent. Four others, three Democrats and one Republican, were removed by request so they can register elsewhere. One Republican also was removed for commission of an infamous crime.

During March there also were six changes in party affiliations. Two Republicans switched to the Democratic banner but four Democrats became Republicans.

Twenty three other registrants transferred from one district or precinct to another and 14 others changed name or address only.

Politically, there are 21,917 Republicans, 11,096 women and 10,821 men; 17,250 Democrats, 8,824 men and 8,426 women; 272 independents, 192 men and 80 women; seven Socialists, five men and two women; and two members of other parties, one man and one woman.

Cool Weather To Remain For Several Days

The Weather Bureau calls for the cool weather to continue today, and the high is expected to be in the 40s.

The area had another touch of winter as snow flurries were noted in various sections of the county yesterday morning.

The unofficial high in downtown Cumberland yesterday was 47 degrees, quite a contrast from last Wednesday, when the mercury reached 87.

Service Time Changed

St. Luke's Lutheran Church will hold a special Good Friday communion service tomorrow at 2 p. m. instead of 3 p. m., as previously announced.

Two Face Dental Law Violations

Trials Scheduled For Next Week

Criminal informations were filed yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court by State's Attorney James S. Getty charging two men with violating dental laws by preparing false teeth without the authority or prescription of a registered and licensed dentist.

Five such charges were placed against Allen Porter of Bowling Green. The other information named Robert W. Rice, who operates a dental laboratory at 484 Baltimore Avenue.

The informations charge that the two men did "make, construct, alter, repair, duplicate and supply an oral prosthetic appliance to be worn as a substitute for natural teeth" without the authority or prescription of a registered and licensed dentist.

Three of the charges against Porter allege the offenses occurred November 30. Another was dated November 15 and the fifth December 30. The charge against Rice was dated December 21.

Two of the five charges against Porter and the case against Rice are scheduled for trial Monday. The other three Porter cases are down for trial Tuesday.

Indictments against two local men returned last week by the grand jury have just been placed on the open docket in Circuit Court. One of them accused Paul Robert Ritter of stealing an $80 camera from Maurice Louis LeFreve while aboard a B&O train at Queen City Station. His trial is due Wednesday.

Walter James Hardesty, this city, has been indicted on a charge of bigamy, allegedly by marrying August 20 while still legally married to another woman. He is scheduled for trial Tuesday.

Glenn Eugene Stouffer, 41, of 406 Goethe Street, was indicted on nine charges of forging his father's name to credit sales slips for $425.17 worth of merchandise obtained from Montgomery Ward and Company between last October 6 and 17.

Donald Lee Festerman, formerly of 933 Glenwood Avenue, was indicted on eight charges of forging checks valued at a total of $1,209.70 between September 26 and October 6.

$3,500 Settlement Filed With Suit

A $3,500 settlement was filed yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court along with a damage suit for that amount growing out of injuries in a traffic accident in LaVale last August 24.

Although Margaret Clark Humbertson is married the suit had to be filed by Mrs. Marjorie M. Clark, her mother and next friend, 132 Reynolds Street, because the girl is still a minor. The action was taken against Samuel J. Baker, RFD 1, Aitch, Pa.

The declaration stated that the plaintiff was a passenger in an automobile being driven west on U.S. Route 40 by her husband, George Gene Humbertson. The declaration contends that Baker, driving out of the LaVale Shopping Center, collided with the Humbertson car causing serious injury to the young woman.

Mediation Meeting Today In Phone Strike

Line Cut Between Romney, Springfield

ROMNEY, W. Va. (UPI) — A federal mediator is to meet with representatives of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers Union, AFL-CIO, and the General Telephone Co. of the Southeast Friday in an attempt to reach an agreement over a contract dispute which resulted in a strike this week.

Some 80 employes walked off their jobs Monday, affecting telephone service at Burlington and Fort Ashby, Mineral County; Romney, Capon Bridge, Levels and Augusta, in Hampshire County; Charles Town, Harpers Ferry and Shepherdstown, in Jefferson County; Maysville and Petersburg in Grant County, and Moorefield and Wardensville in Hardy County.

Commercial representative Norman McKinney said long distance service has been interrupted four times, three as a result of lines cut and the other from wires being wrapped around toll circuits.

McKinney said service between here and Cumberland, Maryland, was out for about five hours Wednesday morning until a line which had been cut and dropped in the North Branch of the Potomac River between Romney and Springfield, Hampshire County, was repaired.

He said the other two cuts were found and repaired Tuesday in the Fort Ashby area and also interrupted service to Cumberland. The fourth interruption, he said, was between Romney and Moorefield Tuesday night.

Company vice president G. A. Kline said the workers' contract expired Monday and management and union representatives had failed to reach an agreement on issues of wage increases and an eighth annual holiday.

It was reported operators were imported yesterday from Cookeville, Tenn., by the General Telephone Company of the Southeast to continue service.
